Churchgoers begin battle with smut

by RUTH MUGALIAN

Yesterday was antipornography Sunday in Rolling Meadows as nearly 1,000 churchgoers signed petitions, and one of the city's four clergymen devoted his entire sermon to the cause of banning obscene movies and pornographic books from the community.

The cause began taking shape about six weeks ago when a group of clergymen and residents, led by Ald Lorraine Godawa, 3rd, decided it was time to rid the city of the X-rated movies that had been shown regularly at the Meadows Theatre, 3265 Kirchoff Rd.

The residents are convinced the X-rated films will pollute the minds of their children and will "chip away at the moral standards of the community," Mrs. Godawa says. But it took a family from Deerfield to make the citizens take action.

THE FAMILY had put $500 down on a house in Rolling Meadows before they knew the city's only theater, located in the main business district, showed X-rated movies. They sacrificed their $500, risked being sued for the home's $91,000 purchase price and stayed in Deerfield.

The people of Rolling Meadows resented the implication that their morals were questionable and feared for the city's reputation. "We don't want to be known as Rolling Meadows, Smutsville," Mrs. Godawa said.

The theater's owners stopped showing X-rated films before the antismut movement got going, but Mrs. Godawa carried on, ecruiting various civic groups to her cause and researching a legal way to bar X-rated movies.

The word from lawyers and legislators was discouraging. Illinois has never passed an obscenity ordinance that has been held up in court.

But Mrs. Godawa and others are confident they will get their way and pornography will never again be seen in Rolling Meadows. Their petitions, which some residents will be carrying door to door, starting today, ask the city council to pass an obscenity ordinance.

MRS. GODAWA SAID she will ask City Atty. Don Rose to write one up. She also said she is willing to fight the theater owners through the courts if necessary.

One signer of the petition said she feels pornography not only chips away at moral standards, but will be the downfall of society.

"It's corrupting the nation and if it doesn't stop now, it will lead to the destruction of the United States," said Eunice Cochenour, a member of the Meadows Baptist Church. "This has been proven all through history. It's what destroyed the Roman Empire."

Mrs. Cochenour said countries such as Sweden, where pronography is legal, are not "productive or prominent." "I think that (pornography) has a lot to do with it," she said.

At the Trinity Lutheran Church, Mike Hein, a Bible studies major, said X-rated movies pervert sex which he said he believes is beautiful. He said as a Christian he opposes pornography, not only for himself, but for everyone.

"I can't say it's OK, you can do whatever you want. It's up to all Christians to help people out," Hein said.

BUT NOT ALL parishioners signed the petitions. Kathy Andres, a member of St. Colette Catholic Church, said she does not like X-rated movies,

North School bidders few and far between

Officials of Arlington Heights Dist. 25 had their gavel at the ready Saturday, all set to auction off North School to the highest bidder.

But the dozen or so people at the building, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., were spectators, not bidders. The result: Dist. 25 still owns North School and the Northwest Opportunity Center and Summit School can stay right where they are.

Supt. Donald Strong said he had had a few calls last week from persons inquiring about the auction but he said no one expressed serious interest.

"WE WERE ALWAYS aware that at any given time it might not be sellable but that's all right because it will get more valuable in the future," he said.

The school has been closed for district use for a year but has been leased to the Northwest Opportunity Center, a social service agency, and Summit School, a private school for exceptional children.

The Dist. 25 Board of Education had set a minimum acceptable bid of $600,000 for the 2.5 acre site with a required deposit of $45,000. The revenue from the sale was expected to offset the district's projected $500,000 budget deficit for the 1978-79 school year.

The superintendent said he was not upset by the failure of bidders to make an offer for the school. He said the property is in a choice commercial area of Arlington Heights and will become more valuable in time.

BOTH THE NORTHWEST Opportunity Center and Summit School had agreed to be moved to Wilson School, 15 E. Palatine Rd., next year. Wilson School will be closed by the district at the end of this school year.

Strong said both groups probably still will be shifted to Wilson School depending on what type of action the school board takes on the North School situation.

Strong said once the school is sold, the zoning on the property will become R3, which calls for low-density development.

Terms of the auction would have given the buyer nine months to acquire a different zoning classification for the property from the Village of Arlington Heights or be forced to forfeit the $45,000 deposit.

A tense peace in riot park

by United Press International

Police clad in riot gear Sunday barricaded streets and guarded ravaged stores in a four-block area of the Northwest Side to prevent further looting or any renewal of rioting among members of the Puerto Rican community.

Two persons were killed in a five-hour melee Saturday night, an outbreak believed sparked by the hatred of two rival street gangs and fueled by long-standing animosity toward police.

Police said 38 police officers and more than 80 civilians were injured, including seven civilians who were taken to Norwegian-American Hospital with gunshot wounds. Most of the officers suffered only minor injuries from bricks and broken glass, police said.

POLICE REPORTED 119 persons were arrested during the riot which began in sprawling Humboldt Park during a Puerto Rican Day celebration on a steaming hot evening. Three

"WE FIGURED this is it" is how Lester Schneider remembers that June 6, 1944 night when he and other sailors steamed into the English Channel aboard a transport ship just ahead of D-Day. Schneider looks through war-time memorabilia on the 33rd anniversary of the invasion that was the beginning of the end for Germany in World War II.

Memories of D-Day still vivid

by DEBBE JONAK

Nobody had to tell them that on June 6, 3 years ago, Lester Schneider and the crew of the U.S. 517 were on the way to change the course of history.

It was D-Day, when 8,000 planes and 4,000 ships would invade the coast of Normandy, France to drive back German forces during World War II. Both the Allies and the Germans knew it was going to happen. But no one, except for a few highly placed Allied generals, knew when.

Until late one night in early June.

"We really didn't know, until we started heading out into the English Channel with a (navigational) pilot aboard. We figured this is it," Schneider said.

SCHNEIDER WAS a sailor stationed on a transport ship from which the D-Day landings were directed. He took part in the largest show of force in history — 250,000 men landed June 6 along a 40-mile strip of the Normandy coast to loosen the stranglehold Germany held in Western Europe.

Now, many years and many miles later, Schneider, 52, lives in a comfortable home at 102 Stratford St., Mount Prospect, with his wife, Betty. He met her on a blind date while he was on a furlough in 1943. They have two grown children.

He has some war photos and an enemy rifle he kept as a memento. Occasionally he exchanges old war stories with other veterans at the Mount Prospect VFW post.

His war stories begin in 1943, when he joined the Navy. His first ship, the U.S. 517, was built in Southern Illinois, then sent down the Mississippi to pick up Schneider and 13 others in New Orleans.

HE WAS ASSIGNED to the diesel engineering crew.

"That's why I'm a little hard of hearing now," Schneider said.

After the crew completed training, the ship headed up to New York and then to Canada.

"We had to wait two weeks in Canada and then we went across," he said. The trip across the Atlantic Ocean lasted 30 days, as the U.S. 517 dodged

Many benefit from Arlington Park Race Track

Arlington Park Race Track opens a four-month horse racing season today that will affect thousands of Northwest suburban residents.

"I think the track has a tremendous economic impact on the area," Earl Johnson, president of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, said.

The track is the largest taxpayer in the village, and it employs many local people during the racing season, Johnson said.

ONE PERSON IT affects is Tom Reid, who has been planning for this day for weeks.

Reid, who manages the Burger King restaurant across the street from the track, has ordered dozens of extra hamburgers and pounds more French fries in anticipation of today's opener and the business it will bring all summer.

"The racetrack is the major draw on this stretch of road," Reid said of his Northwest Highway business just inside Palatine's village limits. "Racing means at least a 10 per cent increase in sales — several hundred dollars more each business day."

Reid isn't the only businessman awaiting the thousands of bettors who will flock to the track six days a week until it closes Oct. 1.

B.F. BOLGRIEN, general manager of the Howard Johnson motel at Ill. Rte. 53 and Northwest Highway in Palatine, is increasing his housekeeping and restaurant staffs and ordering more supplies to handle the anticipated 20 per cent increase in room rentals that will start today.

"It dramatically affects our business," Bolgrien said. "June, July and August are our busiest months because of the racing season. Many other businesses slow down during that time, but not us.

"Without the track nearby it would be difficult to maintain a property of this size with this rate of success," he said.

Ron Langton, owner of Jack's Texaco service station at Hicks and Euclid Roads in Rolling Meadows, also is adding help — three full-time workers to handle the extra traffic he has experienced every year from track patrons.

"ANYTIME A SERVICE station has a great influx of traffic nearby, business will increase," he said. "That holds true for us during the racing season."

Other merchants also benefit from the track, Johnson said, because the track tries to buy strictly local goods and services whenever possible.

"And this is really a plus as far as I'm concerned," Johnson said. People come into the gift shops and jewelry and clothing stores in addition to restaurants and service stations, he said.

The chamber of commerce answers nearly 300 letters a season from people who will be travelling to the track from out-of-state and want to know about food and accommodations, Johnson said.

BUT MERCHANTS aren't the only ones to benefit from the track.

The Village of Arlington Heights receives about $506,000 in taxes from the track each year.

Area police departments also are gearing up for the opening of the season. Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows police will assign about 20 officers to 10 intersections around the track every racing day.

"The biggest negative factor of the track is the traffic," Johnson said. Others agreed with him.

ROLLING MEADOWS Police Chief Lewis Case said the one problem the track presents is getting the track traffic in and out smoothly. Rolling Meadows as a regular track traffic detail off off-duty policemen.

The only problem this presents for the city is scheduling because the track pays the city for all the men who work on the special detail.

Case said that the traffic problems in the city are minimal, but that the officers assigned to that detail have to be expert at handling the traffic.

Billy McMinn, Rolling Meadows alderman from the second ward, which is closest to the track, said one complaint his constituents have is the traffic. The traffic generally doesn't come through the residential area, he said, but stays on the main roads.

MCMINN SAID THAT since he became alderman this spring, he has not had a single complaint about the track. "But I know people have over the past few years complained about the traffic and the noise sometimes," McMinn said.

Everyone agreed that the people in and around the track generally have little negative impact on the area, though.

Despite what some people think, Case said, there is no noticeable increase in crime in the area during the racing season.

"The people stay pretty much to themselves," Case said. "And they all pay in cash, so there's no problem with bad checks or anything like that."

If there are problems and "undesirable" individuals at the track, they usually are within the track itself, Johnson and Case agreed.

"It's better to have those people in the track itself. They really don't affect the town," Case said.

The grandstand gates open at 11 a.m. today and at 1 p.m. a racing Hall of Fame honoring horses, jockeys and trainers who have appeared at the track will officially be opened on the third floor. At 2 p.m. the first race of the season will be run.

"We're looking forward to a profitable summer," Reid said. "We eagerly wait for the season to open every year. The track is good for Arlington Heights and good for us."

Shelter Inc. seeking house

Plans to convert a large house on Algonquin Road in Arlington Heights into a temporary shelter for teen-age boys have been dropped by the Northwest Municipal Conference and Shelter Inc. because of complaints from nearby residents and concerns by village zoning board members. Instead, the groups will ask the Arlington Heights zoning board to recommend approval of an alternate site at 543 W. Algonquin Rd. that is surrounded by industry and not near residential areas. The zoning board last month recommended approval of the first site at 225 E. Algonquin Rd., despite objections from two dozen area residents who opposed the home and the kind of boys they thought would live there. A maximum of five boys ages 11 to 17 would be housed in the first floor of the shelter for no more than 21 days each, officials say. They would not be delinquents, but boys from troubled families, officials said.

Arson seen in apartment fires

Arson is suspected in one of two fires which broke out in two Schaumburg apartment complexes during the weekend causing an estimated $51,000 damage. A fire broke out early Sunday in the clubhouse at the Jamestown Village apartments, 2370 Johnsmith Dr., causing about $50,000 damage. Fire officials said the cause of the blaze is believed to center in electrical appliances near a sauna bath. No injuries were reported and the fire was confined to the sauna bath area, fire officials said. Arson is suspecter in a storage room fire Saturday night in the Towers of Schaumburg, 21 Kristin Dr. Fire Dept. Lt. Edward Lacey and Firefighter Michael Sutfin suffered slight smoke inhalation. Both were treated at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, and later released. Damage was estimated at between $500 and $1,000. Fire officials said complex residents used an in-house hose to contain the blaze on the fourth floor until firefighters arrived.

Moluccans release 2 women hostages

ASSEN, The Netherlands (UPI) — South Moluccan gunmen holding nearly 55 persons aboard a hijacked passenger train released two laughing, overjoyed female hostages Sunday, one of them a pregnant woman.

The women were helped to a waiting car about 500 yards from the train by a local Moluccan physician, Dr. Frans Tutuhatunewa, who spent almost an hour and a half aboard the stalled train. They were then taken to a hospital in ambulances.

The women, Nelleke Ellenbroek, 23, who is pregnant, and Agatha Brouwer-Korf, 31, were overjoyed by their sudden release. Both were laughing as stretcher bearers carried them into a hospital in nearby Groningen.

Mrs. Brouwer-Korf's husband, waiting for her at the hospital, waved his arms and shouted with joy when she arrived.

A HOSPITAL spokesman said the women's physical and mental condition was good. "It all looks excellent," he said.

A Dutch obstetrician examined both women later.

Tutuhatunewa took along raincoats and boots for the women at the gunmen's request because of three days of cloudy and rainy weather. But as the women left the train bright sunshine broke through the overcast sky.

The surprise decision to release the pair followed six hours of meetings Saturday between the gunmen and two South Moluccan mediators.

Justice Minister Dries van Agt said the release was good news, but added he did not wish to express "premature optimism."

"This gesture was not a negative one, that is all I want to say," he told reporters. "It's good news for their relatives and 52 hostages is better than 54."

DURING THE 14-day ordeal, authorities repeatedly demanded the release of Mrs. Ellenbroek, saying she was in urgent need of medical attention.

The gunmen told the two South Moluccan intermediaries Saturday the woman had been given a compartment to hserself and was being given special care.

Authorities said the two were hospitalized for observation and not because of any dramatic deterioration in their health.

The hijackers called the government crisis center at nearby Assen to say they were prepared to release the two women.

A spokesman said the release "completely surprised us."

With negotiations to free the remaining hostages still apparently deadlocked, Justice Minister Dries van Agt expressed fear of a possible backlash against the Netherlands' clannish South Moluccan community of about 35,000.

"THIS THING has gone on so long that the tension between the Dutch and the Moluccan community gives the government grave cause for concern," he told reporters.

The terrorists, believed to number about 15, seized the train and the Bovensmilde elementary school May 23 to press their demands for independence for their Spice Islands homeland, which now is controlled by Indonesia.

Indonesia annexed the islands after the collapse of the Dutch East Indies more than 25 years ago.

The terrorists released more than 100 school children from the school more than a week ago, keeping four teachers at gunpoint.

A Justice Ministry spokesman earlier said after a three-hour cabinet meeting Sunday that talks were so deadlocked the government considered breaking them off for the time being.

The decision to release the two was the first concession by the terrorists since last week, when they dropped their demand that their hostages accompany them out of the country.

Kuwaiti soldiers rush hijacked plane; no injuries

KUWAIT (UPI) — Kuwaiti army commandoes rushed a hijacked 707 airliner Sunday and overpowered the hijacker, freeing all 110 hostages aboard without injuries, an official at Kuwait Airport said.

The official said no shots were fired as the commandoes went into the Middle East Airlines Boeing 707 and overpowered the Lebanese man who hijacked the plane earlier Sunday on a flight from Beirut to Baghdad.

"All passengers are safe and there were no shots," he said on a telephone conversation to New York.

He said it was not certain how the commandoes managed to enter the jet, which had been parked on the tarmac while the hijacker negotiated a $1.5 million ransom for the hostages with Kuwaiti authorities.

The passengers were still at the Kuwait Airport, waiting to continue their trip, and the hijacker was taken away by police, he said.

Beirut airport authorities said the hijacker — believed to be a 27-year-old Lebanese named Nasser Mohammed Ali Bukhalid — boarded the jet in Beirut on a wheelchair.

Kuwaiti officials offered to pay him the $1.5 million ransom if he stepped off the plane to pick the money up, but the hijacker apparently refused to leave the jet, official Kuwaiti sources said.

The seven crew members and 103 passengers — including two British citizens, eight Palestinians, four Lebanese politicians, one Iraq diplomat and three children — were kept inside the four-engine plane.

BEIRUT AIRPORT officials said the hijacker apparently had concealed some sort of weapon inside the wheelchair in which he boarded the airliner in the Lebanese capital.

They said they believed he was from the village of Butarmaz, just north of the port city of Tripoli.

Kuwaiti authorities said the hijacker wanted to fly on to an undisclosed destination after he picked up the money, but the Lebanese government demanded he abandon the hijacked jet and barred him from returning to Beirut.

The hijacker also demanded a negotiating panel be set up comprised of the ambassadors to Kuwait from Iraq, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, and a Kuwaiti representative.

KUWAITI authorities clamped tight security around the airport and Defense Minister Sheikh Saad Al Abdel Al Salem, the Lebanese ambassador to Kuwait and other Kuwaiti officials were involved in the negotiations, the Middle East News Agency said.

Another St. Colette parishioner, Helga Moczisko said she won't sign the petition and that most of her neighbors in the Waverly Park area of town also will not sign.

"I've gone to those movies many times and I don't find them offensive," she said. "And nobody's forcing anyone to see them."

The Mocziskos have two young children, but Mrs. Mozcisko said she is not worried the theater will corrupt them.

She said she took her 7-year-old son to a children's matinee at the Meadows Theatre and there was a poster of a nude woman in the lobby.

"I JUST TOLD him that it was a movie for adults and that it was something he wouldn't be interested in. I wouldn't take my kids to an X-rated movie, but I think you have to be open and honest with them," she said.

"I'm just very against censorship," she said, "It can't go hand in hand with democracy."

But Mrs. Cochenour doesn't buy that argument. "It's like smoking," she said. It hurts everyone. Pornography infringes on others' Constitutional rights because it pollutes the minds of the people."

police vehicles were burned and destroyed and 14 others damaged.

Police Sunday established a command post in the park, soaked and cooled by rains after midnight. Superintendent James Rochford, who toured the park during the height of the brick and bottle throwing, returned Sunday to supervise the command post.

Officers were fearful the end of the rain would bring more trouble.

"The sun is coming out and you know what that means," said one uneasy spokesman in the superintendent's office.

ANOTHER SAID police feared trouble might flare again when those arrested were released from Holiday Court Sunday.

As early afternoon temperatures rose, police ordered all taverns in the four-block area closed.

Six young men were arrested for looting Sunday afternoon in a strip of stores near the park. Police said the six were spotted carrying large boxes with clothing and shoes from a department store. Officers also received a report that about 100 youths had congregated near a squad car and that some were throwing bottles at it.

Rochford said, however, the park area was quickly returning to normal.

"THE SITUATION is as normal as can be. The community has quieted down as much as can be expected," he said. "We have begun mop-up operations."

Temperatures were in the 90s about 6:30 p.m. Saturday when police were called in to break up a fight between two street gangs, the "Latin Kings" and the "Spanish Cobras." Police said they were met by gunfire from Julio Osorio, 26. They said Osorio missed the officers but his shots struck Raphael Cruz, 25, in the chest, killing him. The officers then shot and killed Osorio.

The shootings sparked a full-scale riot as members of the Hispanic community vented their long-standing anger towards police and attacked the officers.

Police responding to radio calls for help swarmed to the park in helicopters, mounted units and task force units from all over the city, including Soldier Field where more than 80,000 rock fans gathered for a concert.

One year ago Sunday the Teton Dam collapsed

REXBURG, Idaho (UPI) — At 11:57 a.m., one year ago Sunday, the nightmare began.

The giant Teton Dam, 305 feet high and only eight months old, collapsed, sending 80 million gallons of water roaring through the valley below, ripping up half-a-dozen towns and killing 11 persons.

Amid official inquiries into the competence of the dam's construction, and whether the disaster was man-made, victims and thousands who helped them solemnly commemorated the anniversary during the weekend.

ONE OF THOSE who returned for the ceremonies, Rex Peterson, of Ogden, Utah, said of the memorial bus rides to the dam site:

"It's kind of funny. Last year we loaded up three buses in the middle of the night and came here to help. We stayed three days and none of us ever saw the dam."

The controversy over the dam took on added significance because of President Carter's skepticism about the building of similar projects and concern over their safety from earthquakes and other causes.

Nearly 5,000 persons returned to this area Saturday for a big "thank you" from residents who have resumed near-normal lives.

BESIDES THE BUS rides to the site of the collapsed earth-fill dam, there were displays by government and private organizaions on the high ground at Ricks College where flood victims were fed and temporarily housed.

About 2,500 persons attended a commemorative meeting. Gov. John Evans and three members of a congressional delegation spoke, praising volunteers and the courage of victims who rebuilt their homes and lives.

Evans recalled a story by then-governor Cecil D. Andrus, now U.S. Interior Secretary, who has vowed to fire U.S. Bureau of Reclamation personnel involved with the building of the dam.

"He (Andrus) actually made the pilot of a plane buzz over some picnickers twice to warn them of the flood," Evans said. "He couldn't be with us here today but he is still with us because of the many wonderful things he did."

KEITH HIGGINSON, commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation and Idaho Water Resource Director at the time of the disaster, said he felt "kind of funny" speaking as head of the agency that built the dam.

The dam, 3,200 feet wide, was nearly full when it burst. The surge of water spread seven miles wide, roaring down at a mile a minute, 15 feet high at places.

Before its force dissipated 75 miles downstream, it destroyed or damaged 4,000 homes, 250 businesses and 3,500 farm buildings, killed 13,000 head of livestock and stripped topsoil from 100,000 acres of rich farmland.

The estimated cost of damage was $1 billion.

Engineers are still studying clues to the collapse, and the federal government has spent some $400,000 to reimburse victims.

A church official said Sunday, "It's peaceful today. People have gone to church and some have gone fishin'. It's mighty peaceful."

'I could have stopped murders'

by NANCY GOTLER

A key witness in the Patricia Columbo-Frank DeLuca murder trial said he could have prevented the murders of Miss Columbo's Elk Grove Village family if he had told police about his relationship with her.

Lanyon Mitchell, 25, of Lake Village, Saturday admitted lying about his friendship with the 20-year-old Miss Columbo in a statement to police a week after the crime because, "I was concerned because I believe I could have stopped the murders and I was afraid they might think I'd done it."

Miss Columbo and her 39-year-old lover, DeLuca, are accused in the torture slayings of Miss Columbo's parents, Frank and Mary, and her 13-year-old brother, Michael, in their home at 55 E. Brantwood Dr., May 4, 1976.

MITCHELL'S testimony came during cross examination in an unusual Saturday session in Cook County criminal court. The session was ordered by Judge R. Eugene Pincham.

Mitchell said he first heard about the murders on the 10 p.m. television news May 7, 1976, and immediately called fellow unindicted co-conspirator Roman Sobcynski to ask, "Can you believe what she done about the murders?"

Mitchell was granted immunity against prosecution for his testimony.

He said his promise to Miss Columbo to kill her family was a "joke" and that he never intended to follow through on the agreement.

He said he and Sobcynski, a Cook County Personnel Dept. employe, lied to Miss Columbo in order to extort money and sexual favors from her.

He admitted Saturday he carried a .22 caliber automatic pistol "to act tough" and to impress Miss Columbo and her friend, Karen Burtt, 20, of Elk Grove Village.

MITCHELL SAID he instructed Miss Columbo how to act after the crime during several meetings they had at Elk Grove Village restaurants and bowling alleys.

"I told her to take jewelry and furs and break into the wall safe to make it look like a burglary," he said. "And once, when we were talking about the floor plan (of her parents' house) that Patty gave me she asked when the hit would go down and what she should do. I told her 'You better have a tear in your eye when the police come and at the funeral you better play it up big.' She said she would."

Mitchell admitted lying numerous times to police in a 27-page statement he gave after his arrest May 14, 1976, and said he did it to protect his wife and Sobcynski.

"I had just gotten married in December of 1975 and didn't want my wife to know about my acts with Pat after that," Mitchell said. "Also I wanted to protect Roman because I hoped he would help me get a job as a CooK County sheriff's policeman."

Nixon sold out to Russians: Young

by United Press International

United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young was quoted Sunday as saying former President Nixon in a sense "sold out to the Soviet Union" in arms negotiations.

In a far-ranging interview with Playboy Magazine, Young said also:

• That when his leader in the civil rights movement, Dr. Martin Luther King, was killed, he thought "that he was very fortunate — really that it was a blessing . . . God decided that Martin had had enough. It was time to go on home and claim his reward."

• He does not apologize for his open style of diplomacy because "once the Xerox copier developed, private diplomacy died. There's no such thing as secrecy. It's like a question of whether it's leaked or revealed openly."

• He believes Cubans are "in control of Angola" and "there's got to be a process whereby Angola is going to be united into one Angola or Cuba will bebe in exactly the same position we were in in Vietnam."

• He wishes Ugandan dictator Idi Amin would "disappear from the face of the earth."

• The Vladivostok agreement "created arms ceilings so high we couldn't possibly reach them anyway. It merely sanctified the arms race."

"It was the Russians and the Nixon administration conspiring to deceive the American people," Young said. "The Nixon administration bent over backward for the Russians and, in a sense, it sold out to the Soviet Union."

Young was a few steps from King, his longtime associate, when King was shot in Memphis, Tenn. He was asked what went through his mind.

"That he was very fortunate, really," Young said. "That it was a blessing. I know that sounds strange, but we've always viewed death as a blessing. That's been the basis of my life since childhood.

"MARTIN HAD done all that he could. He was misunderstood. He was abused by black and white. . . . God decided Martin had had enough. It was time to go on home and claim his reward."

Of his free-speaking ways, Young said he had President Carter's approval and "I guess I find it almost impossible to say 'no comment.' Especially to some young reporter who is just starting out and needs encouragement. But now they've got me paranoid. I hate to, but maybe I'll just have to be rude.

" . . . (Former Secretary of State Henry) Kissinger tried to use the old diplomacy. But it didn't work for him, either, so he tried selective leaking. Instead of doing that and talking about 'unnamed sources' I simply say that I'm speaking on the record."

Young stuck by his statement that Cubans might be a "stabilizing influence" in Angola.

"I condemn the Cuban military presence in Angola. But in terms of technical assistance, the Cuban force can also be a force for stability," he said.

" . . . The American people are afraid of Cuba. And it's ridiculous for the strongest nation in the world to panic every time it hears 1,000 Cubans have gone somewhere . . . There's nothing the Cubans can do that we cannot thwart."

Young was asked if he wished Amin would "disappear from politics."

He answered, "I want him to disappear from the face of the earth. Go on home and claim his reward."

Voters pick Daley successor Tuesday

A successor to Chicago's Mayor Richard J. Daley will be chosen Tuesday in a contest that looks about as one-sided as when Daley ran. Michael A. Bilandic was virtually unknown six months ago when he took over the administration of the nation's second-largest city after the death of Daley. Now he appears certain to be elected as Daley's successor. Bilandic, 54, is the Democratic organization's candidate in the special election. Bilandic insists he is the better candidate because: "I have a record of performance in office."

His challenger is Republican Dennis Block, a tall handsome young candidate who sits in an office almost alone. No crush of campaign aides rush by. No posters or campaign literature abound. Block said his campaign will have raised about $100,000 before the election, but that will be only about "one fifth of what is needed to run a real campaign." Many Republican business executives and even top GOP leaders are giving Block only token support . . . a tape of a television commercial produced for Block's campaign sits in the Loop campaign headquarters getting dusty because he does not have enough money to buy prime air time.

'Superwoman' doctors on increase

Six persons were treated for drug overdoses, three for lacerations and there were untold cases of sunburn, but "the first superbowl of rock" Saturday went otherwise without incident for its 80,000 enthusiasts at Soldier Field. The eight-hour festival, the largest in the city's history, featured a marathon of music by Emerson, Lake and Palmer under sunny skies in 97 degree heat.

Fans who paid $10 to $11 a ticket to see the concert flooded the gates in such density that they had to be opened at 9 a.m., long before the concert began. The Chicago Park District will receive about $150,000, 15 per cent of the concert's gross, promoters said.

Rockfest earns Chicago $150,000

The number of "superwoman" doctors — women physicians who also are wives and mothers — is on the increase, the Journal of the American Medical Association reported in Chicago Sunday. Dr. Marilyn Heins, Wayne State University of Medicine, Detroit, concludes in her continuing study of the work habits of doctors there has been increased productivity in women physicians in the past 10 to 20 years. At the same time, more of the women in medicine married and had children.

"Increased productivity in the face of greater family responsibilities seems to illustrate the 'superwoman' role that many women physicians play," Dr. Heins said. She said her studies determined that women physicians work nearly 90 per cent as much as do men physicians. The difference is largely due to time out for childbearing and child rearing, she reported.

Expert casts doubt on burial mounds

Those so-called Indian burial mounds near Algonquin and Old Plum Grove roads probably are nothing more than a few half-grown hills.

Kathleen Brightwell, a Rolling Meadows woman who has built a reputation as an authority on the American Indian, hiked the 84-acre site last week and found "absolutely no evidence" the land once was an Indian burial ground.

In the first place, she said, the Pottawatomie, Winnebago and Miami tribes that lived in Northern Illinois when the first white settlers arived in the 1880s were not mound-builders.

The mound-building tribes lived farther south, she said.

"THE INDIANS that were here in the Schaumburg area at that time were migratory," she said. "They lived around here in the summer, but when cold weather came they moved south, except for occasional hunting trips back north when food was scarce."

That doesn't rule out the possibility the mounds were built centuries before the migratory tribes took over the area, she said, but mounds that old probably would have yielded some relics by now.

The area now is used as a riding ground for a nearby stable.

"You can see that they work those horses every day," Mrs. Brightwell said. "Had there been anything, no matter how old, it would have begun to surface. If even small pieces of copper had been found, I think we would have heard about it."

Reports of Indian burial mounds said to be on the property surfaced in 1974 when zoning was granted for more than 1,000 apartments and a shopping center planned on the parcel.

ALTHOUGH NEITHER the landowners or developers could produce documentation of the mounds, they promised Schaumburg officials the historic sites would not be disturbed.

The apartment plan was abandoned when financing could not be obtained.

The shopping center site recently was purchased by the Shell Oil Co. Shell officials say they are seeking a developer for the residential area.

Village officials again raised the question of the mounds and said an effort should be made to locate the sites.

HOWEVER, SEVERAL archaeology experts have warned the project could cost several hundred thousand dollars.

On the other hand, Mrs. Brightwell said federal and state grants for mound excavation could be obtained if the ancient burial places could be verified.

"But, unfortunately there is just nothing here to indicate mounds," she said.

Society spending thousands to restore school house

by TIM MORAN

Archer School was bought for $10 in 1849 from Long Grove pioneer Richard Archer to accommodate the influx of settlers from New England.

In 1900 it was sold for $15.

Today, the Long Grove Historical Society is spending thousands of dollars to restore the building to reflect the school of 1877.

The one-room schoolhouse, which has been converted into a garage, was found abandoned last year in the corner of a three-acre piece of property.

"You never would have recognized it. It was up against an old garage and it was pretty sad looking," Alice Ausman, president of the historical society, said.

LAST MARCH, the school was moved to its present location on a concrete and fieldstone foundation behind Kildeer School in Long Grove and restoration efforts were started.

The white, wood-frame school sits next to Drexler's Tavern, another historical building being renovated by the historical society.

The location is fitting as Drexler's originally was located at Hicks Road and Ill. Rte. 53 and Archer School was across Hicks Road to the south.

Along with the restoration, the historical society is piecing together a history of the old schoolhouse.

Through a stroke of luck, the Long Grove society discovered that record books from the school had been given to the Libertyville-Mundelein Historical Society.

Archer School was part of ELA Township Dist. 6 and one of only four schools serving all of Ela and Vernon townships.

THE SCHOOL BOARD met once a year to levy a tax and consider such major purchases as chalk, a broor, a map, matches, paper and a pail.

The tax levy in 1880 was $175.

Average daily attendance at the school in 1865 was 23 students ranging in age from 5 to 16. School records also include a census of the area each year with the family name and age and sex of all children.

Female teachers received $18 to $25 a month and male teachers received $25 to $42 a month. Teachers at the school included May E. Whitney, who has a school named after her in Lake Zuriih, and a relative of Laura Sprague, who has a school named after her in Lincolnshire.

Teaching must have been a challenge with such a range of ages in one room, says Barbara Turner, a member of the Long Grove Historical Society. A list of texts for students includes "Robinson Crusoe," "Appleton's "Readers" and "Powell's How to Talk."

The school's records also include specifications for the 1877 improvements to the school which are being used 100 years later for the restoration.

THE HISTORICAL society still has a long way to go in restoring the schoolhouse. A new roof has been put on, the garage door has been filled in, but little remains of the plaster and lath ceiling and members are worried about the strength of the 130-year-old timbers.

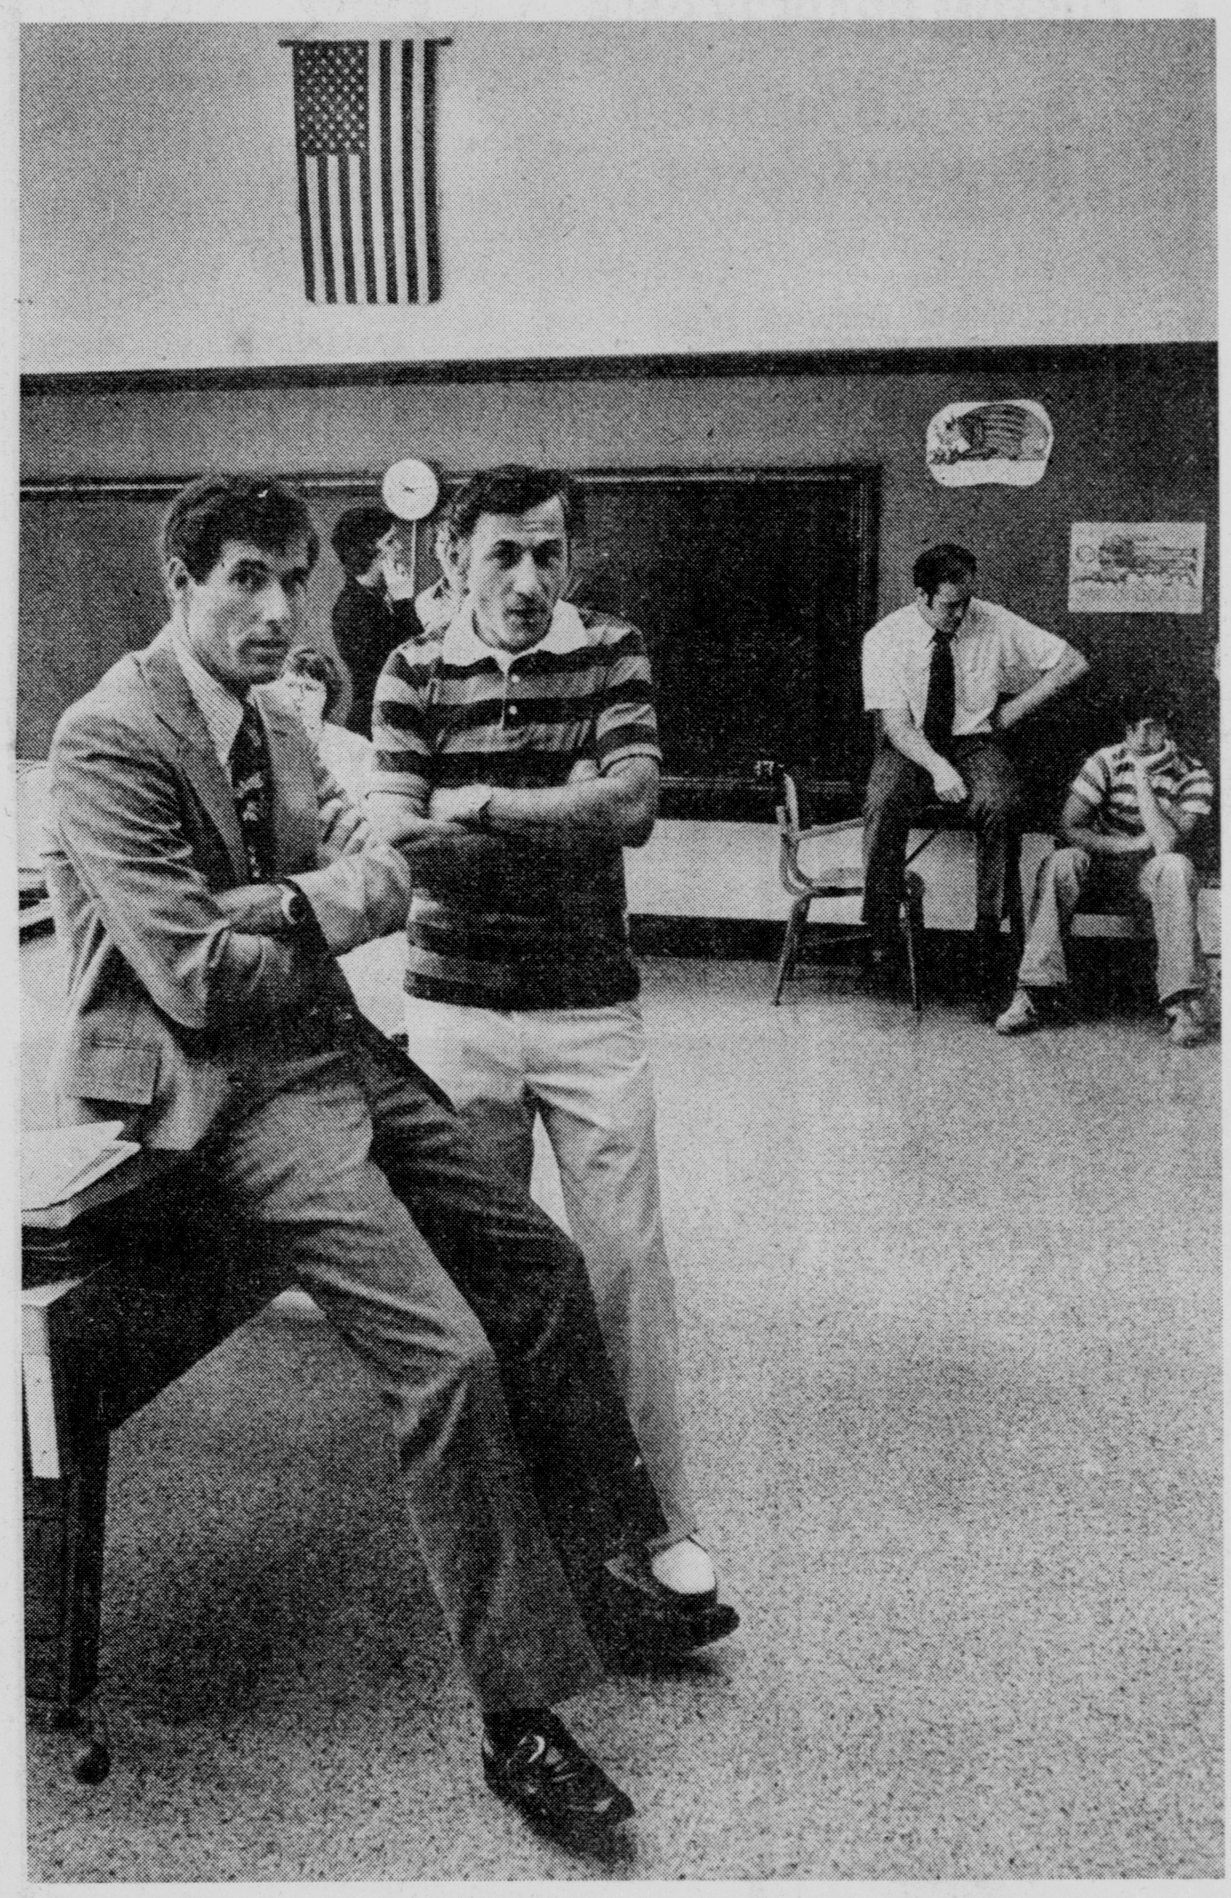
Grants of $1,000 from the IBM Corp.; $5,600 from the Lake County Regional Planning Commission and $500 from Kemper Insurance are being used to finance the restoration along with the donation of time and skill from volunteers, Mrs. Ausman said.

Mrs. Ausman said the building will be strong enough when the restoration is finished so that students from Kildeer School will be able to come over to hold spelling bees and learn what it was like to attend school in the 1800s.

Helping the historical society piece together what school was like in the 1800s are the first-hand accounts of Anne Sauer Wickersheim, 92, who attended Archer School.

Mrs. Wickershiem attended the school in the 1890s, and has attended Long Grove Historical Society meetings to discuss the school. She is very enthusiastic about the restoration project, Mrs Ausman said.

The school records show Mrs. Wickershiem, then Ann Sauer, was an excellent student with grades in the high 90s in most subjects. She lives in Palatine and Highland Park, with her daughters.



JOHN HAGER, left, Dist. 25 attorney, and Dan Suffoletto, Dist. 25 business manager, came and waited but no one showed up to bid for North School at Saturday's auction. Supt. Donald Strong said the district will keep the building until the school board decides what to do with it.

New sprinkle ordinance to be considered tonight

A new ordinance limiting lawn sprinkling in Arlington Heights to 5 to 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday will be considered by the Arlington Heights Village Board today.

The new law also calls for fines of at least $25.

The current village law allows sprinkling Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays and specifies that violators shall not be fined more than $25.

THE NEW PROPOSAL is "only one way" of tackling the village's water problems, Village Pres. James Ryan said. He urged residents to offer their ideas at today's meeting at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The new ordinance proposed by the administration is aimed at preventing drops in reserve water supplies brought on by heavy water usage on legal sprinkling days.

A total sprinkling ban was imposed in Arlington Heights May 27 after 14 million gallons were pumped on a Thursday, causing large drops in the village's elevated water tanks. Normal water usage on a nonsprinkling day is about 7 million gallons.

Bill Reinhard of the public works department said, the sprinkling ban has been effective with daily usage staying under 8.5 million gallons every day this week.

Reinhard said he favors the new sprinkling proposal over those which would allow lawn watering on only two or three days per week."Under the current law, everyone is watering on the same days," he said.

LIMITING SPRINKLING to the hours between 5 and 8 p.m. will make police enforcement easier and also prevent residents from watering during the hottest part of the day when much of the water used evaporates, Reinhard said.

Frank Charlton, assistant village manager, said the administration's proposal to allow sprinkling every day but Sunday between 5 and 8 p.m. should help alleviate the problem with residents who water their lawns on every legal sprinkling day.

"Hopefully, if they know they can sprinkle on any day, they'll wait until it needs it and not sprinkle in advance of the need," Charlton said.

Like the present ordinance, the proposed law does not prohibit residents from watering their gardens "with hand held hoses or sprinkling cans."

Alternate teen shelter site asked

Plans to convert a large house on E. Algonquin Road in Arlington Heights into a temporary shelter for teen-age boys have been dropped by the Northwest Municipal Conference and Shelter, Inc. because of complaints from nearby residents and concerns from zoning board members.

Instead, the groups tonight will ask the zoning board to recommend approval of an alternate site at 543 W. Algonquin Rd. that is surrounded by industry and not near residential areas.

"The decision to ask approval for the alternate site was made to alleviate some of the fears of the zoning board members and residents," William Muhlenfeld, executive director of the Northwest Municipal Conference, said.

"SOME ZONING board members were concerned about the proximity of the home to a large, busy street and some of the residents felt that we would be opening a prison near their homes," he said.

The zoning board last month recommended approval of the first site at 225 E. Algonquin Rd., despite the objections of two dozen area residents who opposed the home and the kind of boys they thought would live there.

Officials said a maximum of five boys age 11 to 17 would be housed at the shelter for no more than 21 days each. They will not be delinquents, they said, but boys from troubled families.

One couple will live at the home and a third employe will supervise the children during the day.

Today's meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Muhlenfeld said he expects no problem getting the second site approved.

"THIS SITE is a better place for the home," he said. "The first choice would have needed some renovation to comply with village fire codes. The second building is brick and has been approved by the building department and is on more land."

The monthly rent, to be paid owners Kanematsu-Gosho, Inc., is $625, about $100 less than the cost of the first house, Muhlenfeld said. The home has three bedrooms and is on a 2.5-acre lot.

Susan Roberts, president of the Shelter, Inc., board of directors, said, "The second site is more suitable. If it had been available earlier we would have preferred it from the beginning."

Dist. 25 aproves $8,800 Music for Youth donation

A contribution of $8,800 to Music for Youth, a private parents' organization that sponsors a string music program in Arlington Heights Dist. 25, has been approved by the Dist. 25 Board of Education.

The organization served 178 Dist. 25 students this year, an increase of almost 40 students from the year before because of an advertising compaign, said Ernest Templeton, head of Music For Youth.

The group is projecting a $29,000 budget for 1977-78, including $8,800 from Dist. 25, $14,900 from parent donations, $1,800 from concert income and about $4,000 carried from this year.

The group's expenses are mainly for teachers, salaries and instruments.

Music For Youth was formed in 1971 when the Dist. 25 board dropped its music program after a tax increase referendum failed. The program has operated since then with a yearly subsidy from the district, although the organization recently has had rough going obtaining district funds because of district financial problems caused by declining enrollment.

The program offers lessons during the school day for children in small groups and after school for larger groups.

Although the nonprofit group cannot ask for fees, parents are asked for donations. A donation schedule ranges from about $55 to $80 for each student, depending on the student's age.

Mitchell, Haldeman –last day in court

John Mitchell and H. R. Haldeman have one last day in court Monday to hear Judge John Sirica tell them they are going to jail —probably June 22 — for conspiring to cover up the Watergate scandal. Then, so far as the justice system is concerned, the worst political scandal in American history will be over. Sirica, the U.S. District Court judge who presided over almost all the Watergate criminal trials, has insisted that Mitchell, the former attorney general, and Haldeman, Richard Nixon's White House chief of staff, be present to hear his ruling on their jail date.

Lawyers for both men are expected to ask Sirica to reduce their sentences of 30 months to eight years imprisonment for the 1975 conspiracy convictions. Whatever he decides on that matter, Sirica has indicated it is almost certain he will order them to report to prison June 22 — five years and five days after the Watergate burglary that led to a White House cover-up and the resignation of a president.

Vacationers laugh off shark scare

Vacationers crowded the beaches Sunday under sunny skies, marking an end to the great South Texas shark scare which tied up Padre Island resorts for almost a week and threatened to jeopardize the tourist season. "People now are just laughing about it mostly," the manager of the Island Retreat motel said Sunday. "They just seem unconcerned. "There's a lot of people here and people are already all over the beaches," the manager said.

During the scare, scores of sand sharks and hammerheads infested some of the state's best swimming grounds along the Padre Island National Seashore park. Officials said the bizarre biological coincidence which caused thousands of sharks to gather in one spot to feed off the same swarm of shrimp ended Saturday when the sharks abandoned the warm, shallow waters for the cooler depths of the Gulf of Mexico. A check of the same waters Sunday by Coast Guard and park officials showed only a few sharks remained in the area.

Memorial held for fire victims

Hundreds of persons whose lives were touched by the Beverly Hills Supper Club tragedy gathered in a cemetery Sunday to honor the victims of one of the nation's worst fire disasters. The late afternoon observance, an official memorial service for the 161 victims of the May 28 blaze, was on a lush hilltop inside Evergreen Cemetery, about a mile from the rubble of the once-posh Southgate, Ky. night club.

At the fire scene, all was quiet. Investigators had called a weekend-long halt to their intensive inquiry into the disaster, in order to organize information already gathered and to take a brief rest from their dusk-to-dawn work days at the site.

Coup staged in Seychelles Islands

Prime Minister France Albert Rene Sunday overthrew jet-setting President James Mancham, imposed a curfew on the sun-drenched Indian Ocean Islands of Seychelles and warned that anyone who defied it would be shot on sight. The bearded 37-year-old Mancham, in London to attend the Commonwealth summit conference, immediately blamed Soviet subversion, not his playboy style of life, for the "Judas-like coup" by the Marxist-oriented Rene.

"I do not accept this action as a fait accompli," he vowed. The United States mantains a satellite tracking station on the main island of Mahe (east of the African mainland) and this is expected to be one of the first targets of the new government. Backed by the bulk of the tiny 556-man police force — the year-old nation, legendary pirates' lair, has no army, navy or air force — Rene grabbed power after a night of sporadic gunfire in which two police officers reportedly were shot and several more wounded in this tiny seaport capital nestling in the shadow of massive granite mountains.

Strong quake rocks S. Iran

Four earthquakes strong enough to cause destruction shook southern Iran Sunday, the geophysical center in Tehran said. Correspondents in the area reported damage to at least three towns around the epicenter of the biggest shock, near Kerman Shah, 280 miles south of Tehran.

The reports said houses were damaged and windows shattered in the towns of Andimeshk, Desful Ahvaz and Masjid Soleiman in Khuyestan province. The reports said residents were panic-stricken by the length of the first quake which lasted at least four minutes.

All U.S. debt up to $3.5 trillion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Net public and private debt increased to $3.4 trillion last year — which counts out to $15,400 for every man, woman and child — the Commerce Dept. said Sunday.

And, the department said, the government got into hock faster than private citizens and companies did last year for only the second time since World War II.

The total net debt was up from $3 trillion in 1975, when it would have required $14,300 from each person to get everyone out of the red.

BUT THE FIGURES are not as bad as they seem.

The total net debt includes every type of credit from home mortgages to business loans and U.S. savings bonds.

Government debt, after deducting investment income from retirement pension funds, leases and other income, rose 11.5 per cent last year. Private debt climbed 10.5 per cent.

But the rate of increase for public debt slowed from 1975 when the federal government offered income tax rebates and other fiscal stimulus to spur the nation out of its worst recession in 35 years.

DESPITE THE LOWER rate of increase in government debt — an excess of spending over income from taxes, mineral and land leases — the fact that it increased two years running concerned some economists.

Dr. Jack Carlson of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce said the faster rise in public debt over the past two years was understandable because of the recession, but "as we move to full employment it is a danger, an unhealthy trend, for public debt to grow faster than private."

He said the federal government is using debt for growth "that will ultimately crowd out private borrowing for plant expansion and job development."

Total debt outstanding increased faster in 1976 than 1975 because the improving economy put more people to work and consumer confidence improved. At the same time, federal spending was at a record high.

INDIVIDUALS, MOSTLY spending for new homes, and businesses increased debt 10.5 per cent in 1976, nearly double the 6.3 per cent rise in 1975. Yet private debt stood at $2.5 trillion.

Debt for the federal government surged 15.6 per cent to $515 billion. Since World War II, the increase was second only to the 23.7 per cent jump in 1975, the Commerce Dept. said.

State and local government debt, at $236 billion, increased at a rate of 6.1 per cent, which was slower than the federal and private sectors, but marked an increase from 1975.

Carter to seek energy bill support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter will meet with congressmen at the White House four days this week, mostly in a personal effort to get his energy package through Capitol Hill without major changes, a spokesman said Sunday.

The President met with 90 legislators in two days last week to plead his case and a White House spokesman said "he meets with congressmen every day this week, except Monday."

One group Carter courted last week was the House Ways and Means Committee, which starts work Monday on the tax portion of the President's energy proposals — including the standby tax on gasoline and a new levy on gas-guzzling cars.

SOME congressional leaders have said the tax proposals are in serious trouble, but Carter, urging Congress to approve the difficult parts of his program as well as the more palatable one, said he will fight to get them approved.

Aides said one reason the President is making a strong personal effort on the energy package is to avoid a repeat of the overhaul Congress gave his proposal to create a Cabinet-level Department of Energy.

The House and Senate both have passed bills approving a Department of Energy, but neither measure gives the energy secretary the full powers the President requested.

Under the House bill, the department will cease to exist at the end of 1982 unless Congress decides it should be continued. The Senate bill does not include that provision and a conference committee must work out differences in the two measures before final legislation is sent to the White House.

ON ANOTHER topic the administration Monday is expected to say it supports test landings of the Concorde supersonic aircraft at Kennedy Airport in New York City on a trial basis.

The State Department and Transportation Department are scheduled to submit the administration's views to the U.S. Court of Appeals in New York, which is deciding whether to allow the arrivals. The court asked the federal government to file position papers in the case.

Carter already has said he supports a 16-month trial run for Concorde, and a spokesman said Sunday there is "no reason to believe" there will be a change in that position.

Thoughts on a Mattress Poem: Back-ache Blues*

Once upon a midnight sleeping
Suddenly I woke up weeping.
Something happened in my mattress
To disturb my night's repose.
While I rested nearly napping,
Suddenly there came a snapping
As the springs unleashed their zapping
Every time I tried to doze.

Why is this mattress getting bumpy?
Why the surface worn and lumpy?
Could it be because I've used it
Every night for twenty years?
Maybe I should buy a new one
To replace this ancient ruin.
Could the Schaumburg Mattress factory
Drive away my back-ache tears?

Morning found me weak and worried.
To the Factory I hurried.
Bought a mattress and a box spring
To relieve my back-ache blues.
Now I sleep with blissful ease.
No more back-ache memories.
Now I know why Schaumburg Mattress
Well deserves its rave reviews.

Graduates get technical and land a job

The lure of the academic life is what brings some high school seniors to college. They major in philosophy or Latin or marine biology.

Then there are the more practical-minded students with money-conscious parents. They major in engineering or acounting or business administration.

Those students in college only for intellectual enlightenment may find themselves unemployed after their college days. Their job-wise peers, on the other hand, often get job offers along with their degrees.

According to a survey of the nation's largest business firms, job prospects are much better, for students graduating from college this spring, than they were for last year's crop of college seniors. The survey was issued this week by Frank S. Endicott, retired director of placement at Northwestern University, Evanston.

Tht job outlook is especially good, Endicott reported, for students receiving bachelor's degrees in engineering and other technical fields. In those areas, businesses reported a 30 per cent increase in hiring.

But for liberal arts graduates on the bachelor's level, there was only a 3 per cent jump in the number of jobs offered, Endicott said. Liberal arts graduates with a master's degree face the worst situation: a 22 per cent drop in the number of jobs available.

WISTFULLY GAZING out a window at Northwestern's Evanston campus, Jane Yount reminisces about her three years at college — years which she said brought her a good education, but no job offers.

The answer to her job search: nyet

Senior year in college has not exactly been a bed of roses for Jane Yount.

She is something of a super-achiever, graduating Phi Beta Kappa in three years as a Russian major at Northwestern. But she can't find a job.

It's not that there are no jobs around for the 20-year-old St. Louis resident. It's just that there seems to be nothing available in her field, Jane said.

The liberal arts major said she hoped to get a job with a private company or government agency in which she could use her fluency in Russian.

"BUT INSTEAD OF hiring people with a Russian background and then training them in a particular field, they do the reverse," she said. She said she was told again and again that employers were seeking people with a business background who would then undergo intensive language training.

Jane said she started her job hunt last September and spent between 5 and 10 hours a week on the project throughout this school year.

She sent letters and resumes to more than 70 companies and government offices which deal with the Soviet Union but nothing turned up.

After her graduation June 18, Jane will return to St. Louis and find a part-time summer job "to have a little bit of security" while she looks for something "more substantial."

Although her two fellow graduates from the Russian department are entering graduate school next fall, Jane said she does not have the financial resources to do the same.

"I'M TOTALLY independent," she said. "I have to think about paying back my loans," which amount to $2,200 over the past three years.

Jane said she doesn't think she made a mistake in majoring in Russian. When she entered college, she said, "linguists then thought Russian was a very up-and-coming language, particularly with the increase in detente. But it doesn't mean jobs related to the field of Russian have opened up."

She said she doesn't feel like she was deceived or led into thinking she would get the career of her dreams when she finished school.

"No one held my hand and said you're going to get such a wonderful job, you picked such an appropriate major," she said with a sarcastic laugh.

If she had it to do all over again, Jane said she wouldn't have done it any differently.

"I could have majored in a field that I knew could get me a job, such as engineering," she said. "But I wouldn't have enjoyed my stay at college."

"It's not a pre-job school," Jane said. "They don't guarantee you a job, they guarantee you your education."

A plan and a little studying pay off

When Michael Ksiazek left Mount Prospect for college four years ago, he knew what he was looking for at the end of the road — a job.

He found it, and without much trouble.

"I really didn't have to solicit anyone. They solicited me," said Michael, who received a dozen job offers before settling on a position as a mechanical engineer with International Harvester in Hinsdale.

THE EASE WITH which Michael landed a job was helped by planning. When he entered Northwestern University he figured engineering would be a ripe field for a while, so he made it his major.

With Northwestern's costs totalling more than $6,000 a year "there's no use wasting all that money if you can't find a job," Michael said.

Michael first linked with International Harvester through Northwestern's cooperative work-study program. For the past two years he alternated one 10-week quarter on campus taking courses with one quarter working as a paid intern for International Harvester.

Even though he was familiar with International Harvester, Michael considered other prospective employers.

He had a batch of on-campus interviews last fall. During the winter a number of companies wined and dined him at their offices around the country.

A DOZEN JOB offers came out of Michael's search — some at starting salaries as high as $19,600 — but he selected International Harvester's bid at slightly lower pay because he wanted to stay in the Chicago area.

When he moves out of his fraternity house in Evanston in mid-June, Michael will return to Mount Prospect to live with his family at 803 S. School St. until he gets married a year from now.

Michael finished college with a 3.3 grade average out of a possible 4.0, but he said, "I did very little studying." He spent more time, he said, on activities such as being homecoming float chairman of his fraternity.

But it wasn't for the grades or the social life that Michael came to Northwestern. It was all part of the plan. "I came here simply because I thought it was a good name for getting a job," he said.

ENGINEERING PROVED to be the magic word for Michael Ksiazek of Mount Prospect when he set out on his job search this year. The Northwestern senior walked off with a dozen job offers.

She's a black, woman engineer

Cyndi is a recruiter's dream

Cyndi Hogan is a job recruiter's dream come true.

She will graduate from Northwestern University this month with a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering. She is bright, lively and articulate. And she is black.

On June 30, Cyndi will begin working as a project engineer for Proctor and Gamble at a starting salary of $17,000 a year. She accepted the job after turning down offers from 12 of the 14 companies which interviewed her.

EMPLOYERS THIS spring are actively searching for female graduates in science and engineering, said Victor R. Lindquist, director of Northwestern's placement center. And with government regulations forcing companies to hire minorities, being black doesn't hurt.

For Cyndi, however, the knowledge that she is the answer to an affirmative action officer's wildest dreams doesn't jar her self confidence.

"I myself feel quite qualified to match my white counterparts," Cyndi said.

"The companies who I interviewed with are all under pressure to hire minorities, particularly women and blacks," she said. "But I trust that all the companies looked at my qualifications first."

CONSIDERING she is only 21 and finished college in three years, Cyndi had plenty to list on her resume: a 2.78 grade average on a scale where 4.0 is the highest; membership in several civil engineering societies; and a season on Northwestern's women's volleyball team.

This school year has been something of a grand tour of the United States for Cyndi, who came to Northwestern from Cincinnati, where her father is a postal worker and her mother a secretary.

CYNDI HOGAN, who graduates from Northwestern with a civil engineering degree, relaxes in her dorm room in her last days of college. Employers throughout the country tried to win Cyndi to their side until she accepted a bid from Proctor and Gamble.

Monsanto, Chrysler Corp. and General Motors were a few of the industries which sent Cyndi on interviews around the country, wooing her in royal fashion.

"They pay for your plane fare, they have limousines waiting to take you to very smart hotels and you can eat wherever you want," Cyndi said. "I was overwhelmed."

The decision to accept the offer from Proctor and Gamble, which is based in Cincinnati, came easy for Cyndi because "I always wanted to work for them." When the company's recruiters came to Northwestern, Cyndi said, "I jumped at the chance."

And when Proctor and Gamble's recruiters met Cyndi, the jumped at the chance, too.

Plant foliage is traded for head foliage

by TERRY HERSHEY

They were lined up all over the counters; rubber tree plants, diffenbachia and even a four-foot schefflera.

In the background was the whir of hair driers and the snipping of scissors.

This unlikely scene that greeted customers as they walked into the Hair Express beauty salon in Schaumburg Sunday was all part of a plant-a-thon staged by owners Frank LaMantia and Joe Dini.

IT WORKED LIKE this: customers would be given a free hair cut if they brought in a plant. The greenery was then donated to St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly in Palatine.

The idea was the brainchild of LaMantia, a self-proclaimed "plant nut", who does volunteer work at the home by cutting residents hair free of charge.

The shop was full of people early in the day; customers getting their haircuts and friends just kibbitzing.

One man couldn't believe what he saw.

"You don't get nothing for nothing these days," he said. "You're crazy. How can you guys do this — it's impossible."

THE NORMAL CHARGE for a hair cut is between $16 and $20 for women and $12 for men.

Dini didn't think the idea was "impossible."

"Most people thought I was crazy when I told them (about the free haircut)," Dini's wife, Laura, said. "They couldn't believe there wasn't any charge. But they all thought it was a good idea after I explained it to them."

"Why shouldn't we help other people," he said. "And nobody ever thinks of the elderly. I think more people, including beauticians, should do things like this."

Dini said the event might help the business, but "We didn't do it to get customers to come in. I think people will think more of us and the shop for doing this, but that's not why we did it."

ROCHELLE PUCZKOWSKYJ gets a free haircut from Frank LaMantia in exchange for a plant. LaMantia and his partner at Hair Express in Schaumburg gave the free haircuts in return for the donation of plants which they will give to St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly in Palatine.

LaMANTIA HAD several reasons for the project.

"You know what I hope to get out of this? I hope a lot of other shops will begin doing it and then the homes will get a lot more things."

LaMantia was planning to deliver the plants to St. Joseph's Sunday after he finished giving the last haircut.

Dini and LaMantia have more plans for the future. They will probably participate in the day-long fund-raiser for the Hemophilia Foundation which will be held in Chicago.

And they plan more fund-raisers at their own shop.

But there wasn't much time for planning Sunday. They were kept busy by cutting, combing and drying.

By the way, the man who stopped in to tell the owners they were crazy returned later in the day. This time he came back with his wife and kids for haircuts.

enemy submarines.

The ship was not docked long in England, when the loudspeaker called the crew to shove off and the ship slowly made its way across the channel.

On board the ship were hundreds of troops and tanks. In the officers' quarters were "a lot of brass," who directed movement of all the ships in the invasion, Schneider said.

"THAT DAWN, we had general quarters," he said. His general quarters, or station, was at the top of the ship, behind a large anti-aircraft gun.

He stood ready for his first battle.

"I was not really scared. I was young and I didn't know what to expect," he said. "I was just worried that there was only a half-inch of sheet metal between me and the ocean."

The first enemy attack came by air as the ship approached shore as part of the third wave.

"The Germans had painted their planes like the Allied," Schneider said, explaining Allied planes had stripes on their wings.

"The gunnery officer said don't shoot, that's an Allied plane," he said. But when the plane dropped a bomb and the crew was showered with shrapnel, Schneider received orders.

AFTER THAT, he identified enemy aircraft by sound instead of sight. The German planes made a buzzing sound.

The ship beached and emptied its cargo of men and machinery. Surprising the German forces, the troops quickly forced an enemy retreat.

"Then we converted the tank deck to a hospital. Some of the same guys came right back on — their trucks hit mines," Schneider said.

U.S. 517, which carried Lester Schneider and other sailors into D-Day.

"When the tide came in it was a mess — Americans floating around with arms and legs blown off. But we didn't think much of it then," he said, shaking his head slowly. "Strange, huh? How cold-blooded."

After D-Day, the ship withdrew and spent the rest of the war transporting supplies, ammunition and troops from England to France.

Schneider said he had few worries or fears in those days.

"We were kind of proud — really," he said. "We had quite a bit of confidence that we were going to win — because we're Americans."

Mars probe included in 5-year plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The space agency is developing a five-year planetary exploration plan including a proposed survey of Mars with 1984 launchings of two craft carrying a roving vehicle, three spear-like ground penetrators and a mapping satellite.

The hope is to follow up that multi-pronged expedition with the launch in 1990 of automated ships to land on Mars, collect samples of rocks and soil, and return them to Earth.

The five-year plan, outlined in interviews and two days of meetings of the American Geophysical Union last week, also envisions:

- A spacecraft for launch in 1986, at the earliest, to orbit Mercury and possibly land a simple exploratory robot on the surface of the planet closest to the sun.
- A satellite leaving in 1983 to orbit Venus and map its cloud-shrouded surface with radar.
- A spacecraft to be launched in early 1982 to orbit Jupiter and send an instrumented probe deep into its dense, hot atmosphere.
- A spacecraft launched in 1985 to orbit Saturn and send down two probes, one to study the planet's atmosphere, the other to examine the atmosphere of the Saturn moon, Titan.
- A spacecraft sent out in 1982 to rendezous with and examine Halley's comet.
- A probe launched in 1985 to survey the 240-mile thick asteroid Vesta and three smaller asteroids.

"These are possible candidates for the future — high priority mission opportunities," said A. Thomas Young, head of planetary and lunar programs.

But he emphasized the only one of those missions approved by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration management and the White House is the Jupiter orbiter-probe.

Winners tell of lottery luck

Each year millions of residents around the state buy Illinois lottery tickets, hoping to strike it rich. Few do, but among past winners are a handful of Northwest suburban residents who have parlayed their prizes into new homes, cars and secure futures.

While their financial situations have improved, the winners say their daily routines remain the same. None has quit a job or retired.

Three big winners talked to The Herald about how a change in luck changed their lives.

Lottery buys key to dream home for couple

Raymond Roper, dressed in a green work shirt and slacks, leaned back in his reclining chair and dreamed of spending a month in Hawaii.

But unlike his fellow custodians at Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows, Roper can afford to make his dream come true.

Two years ago he and his wife, Marion, bought a 50-cent Illinois state lottery ticket and suddenly were $150,000 richer.

CUSTODIAN REYMOND Roper still works at Carl Sandburg School, Rolling Meadows, even though he won $150,000 in the Illinois state lottery two years ago.

THEY SPLIT the $300,000 prize with a Woodstock couple with whom they had bought tickets and since have traded their apartment a block from the railroad tracks for a home in Arlington Heights, a new car and plans to retire early.

"It still doesn't seem possible that it really happened," Mrs. Roper, 49, said, displaying newspaper clippings and pictures of herself and her husband after winning their prize.

While the Ropers insist money hasn't changed them — they still bowl and play bingo regularly with the same group of friends — life for them is different now.

"I'm happier because I have my own house now, which is something I always wanted but never got," Mrs. Roper said. "We're enjoying the money and the publicity that went with it."

However, the publicity and Mrs. Roper's televised wish for a new home after her ticket was selected as the winner prompted two dozen phone calls from realtors and forced the family to request an unlisted number.

DESPITE THEIR added income the Ropers' daily routine still includes working. "I wouldn't know what to do with myself at home so I keep working," he said. His wife still works 10 hours a day at a Rolling Meadows staple gun factory.

They spend their evenings watching the color television set they had before their luck changed and fixing up their modest, one-story dream house.

The new furniture is protected by cloth covers "so it will last," Mrs. Roper said, and the lawn is lovingly manicured.

Their future is financially secure. Long before their prize money runs out their home will be paid for and Roper will be collecting pension and Social Security payments. His wife will do the same just as the winnings stop coming.

MUCH OF THE $10,000 they will receive for 15 years is spent on reducing the house mortgage, which they hope to have paid before 60-year-old Roper retires. Then they will travel.

"Our friends who won the other half of the money are traveling all over the country and world now in a camper," Mrs. Roper said. "Traveling is something we'd like to do after we retire."

Meanwhile, jokes about their wealth follow them wherever they go.

"No matter where we are people still tease us about being millionaires," Mrs. Roper said. "But I don't feel rich. We haven't got the money in the bank because we're trying to pay off the mortgage quickly. But we are enjoying the house and look forward to having the extra money for the future."

Stories by Nancy Gotler

Security is $50,000 a year

Last year Raymond Wells won $1 million in the Illinois state lottery, but he says he doesn't feel rich.

"Rich to me is Bob Hope or Nelson Rockefeller," the 37-year-old Elk Grove High School Spanish teacher said. "Rich is not having to get up and go to work, having a 50-room English Tudor house with a swimming pool in the back and a Mercedes roadster parked outside.

"All I have," he said, "is a large mortgage and some money in the bank. That puts me in a bracket with a lot of other people out here."

So, Wells continues to teach even though he is disillusioned with his job, because, he said, "You can't retire on that amount of money."

THAT MONEY is $50,000 a year for 20 years, the amount Wells and his wife, Elinor, won when her twice weekly lottery ticket purchases paid off. The odds against them were 30 million to one.

Since then, they have bought a two-story home in Arlington Heights, a new car and have made plans to invest the money. But Wells has decided to continue teaching four more years.

"By then I will have been teaching 20 years and will feel that I have made my contribution," he said.

He taught Spanish for four years at Forest View High School and has worked at Elk Grove High School for 11 years. But he says he is disappointed with his job because it no longer is rewarding.

"Since I started 16 years ago the concept of teaching has changed. The suburban view of education is not one I share and that climate, I find, makes it difficult to have a rewarding experience," he said.

ALTHOUGH HIS prize money eventually will allow him to stop teaching, Wells said he has no plans for future employment.

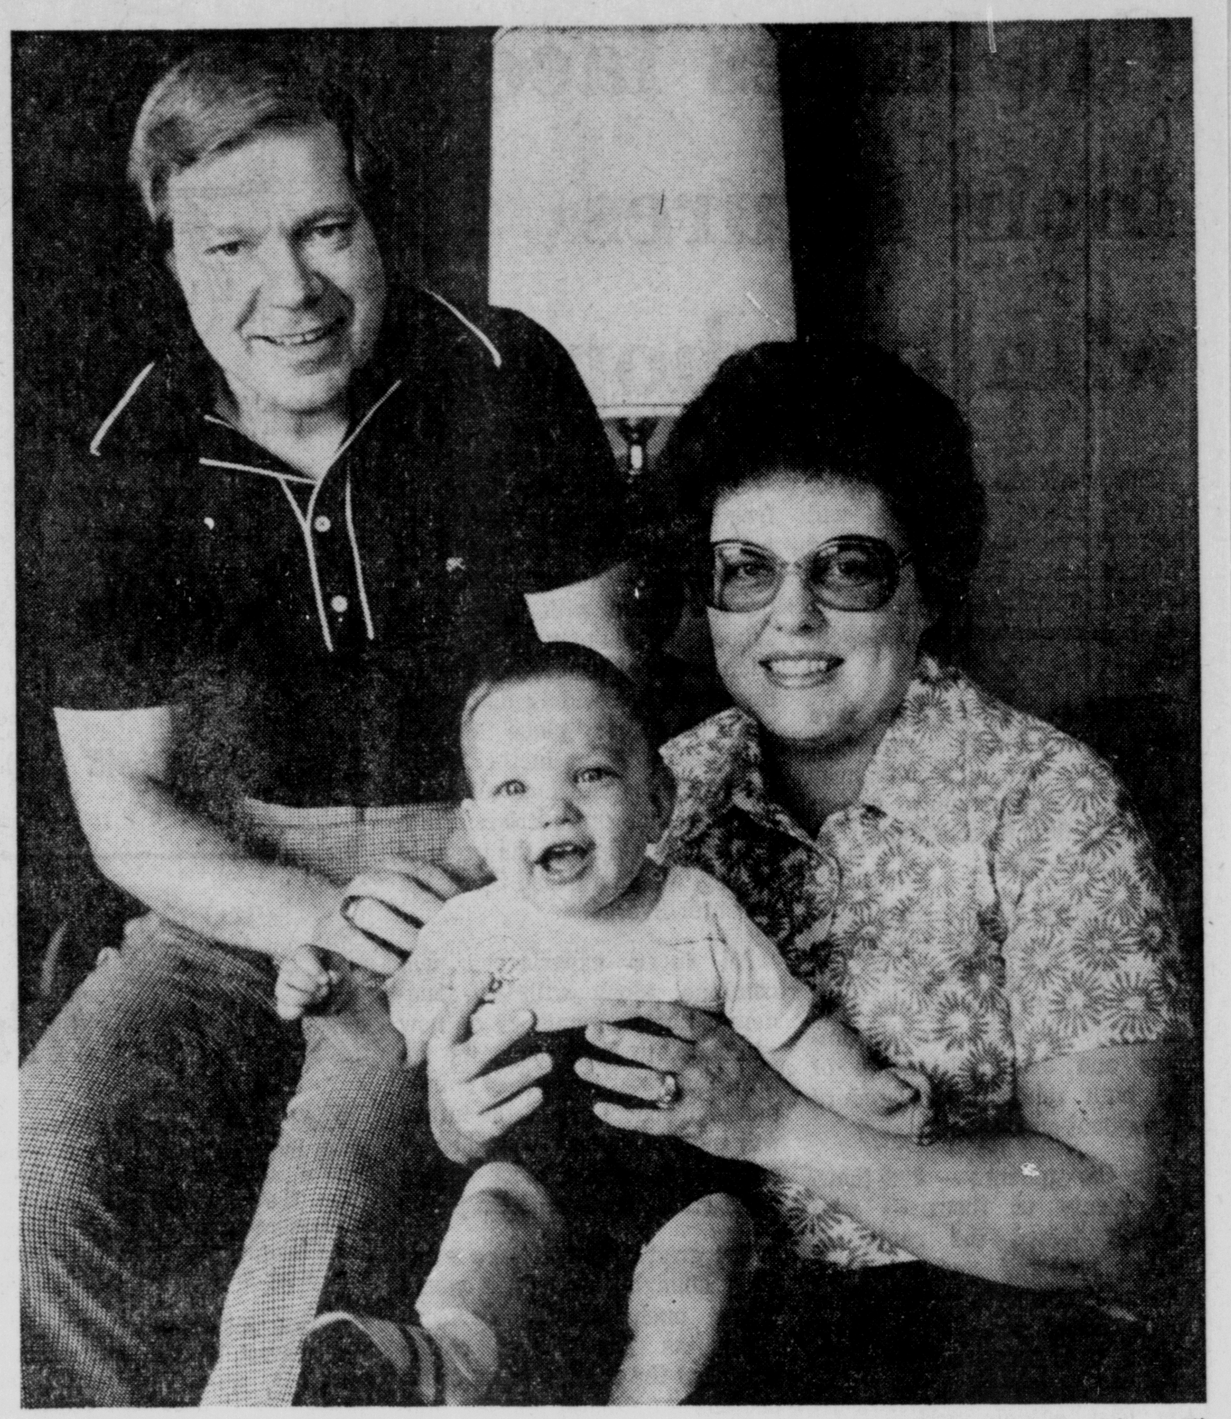
He and his wife ultimately want to retire to their native Bloomington, Ill., so their 8-month-old son, Ward, can be near his relatives.

But retiring to a condominium in Spain, a plan Wells said he made jokingly after winning the money, is not an impossibility.

Despite the responsibility to spend carefully and invest the money Wells said he and his wife feel, they are enjoying the money.

"It hasn't changed us. We still have the same circle of friends and the same hobbies," he said. "It has changed our financial security, but not our lifestyle.

"WE DON'T worry about money now. If we want something and it's reasonable we buy it," he said.



MILLIONAIRE RAYMOND Wells, his wife, Elinor, and 8-month-old son, Ward, in the Arlington Heights home they bought with their lottery winnings. Wells plans to quit teaching Spanish at Elk Grove High School in four more years and live on the $50,000 he will receive annually for 20 years.

But they are spending their money thriftily. "I want a Mercedes roadster but even though I can afford to buy a $25,000 car we both are too sensible to do it," Wells said. "A lot of people would bend to their whims if they won this much money but we feel it would be a tragedy, a crime, a sin if to have this kind of good fortune and end up with nothing in a few years."

Besides winning the money last year, the Wells' first child was born after 16 years of marriage and reports from doctors that they would never have children.

"Our son was more of a windfall than the money," Wells said. "He was our real prize last year. We just feel we have to invest our money correctly to build an estate for him."

But their son is not going to be spoiled by the money, Wells said. "Just because I can afford it he's not going to have a car the minute he turns 16. We want him to grow up normal. We're going to do our best to see that he grows up a decent human being, and for that love is more important than any amount of money."

Winning a lifesaver to wife, ailing husband

Two years ago Deloris Motquin spent $1 on her first Illinois state lottery ticket. Today she says that purchase and the $100,000 prize it brought have saved her husband's life.

"Winning this money has taken a load off Harold's shoulders and allowed him to retire with peace of mind," Mrs. Motquin, 57, said. "Without it he wouldn't be here now. He would have worried himself to death about paying his big medical bills."

The Motquins of Des Plaines are among the handful of Northwest suburban residents who have won large amounts of money through the state lottery since it began in 1975.

Like many of their fellow winners, the Motquins say the money hasn't changed the way they live or made them exceptionally rich, but it has brought a comfortable way of life and a secure future.

MOST OF THE $10,000 they will receive annually for 10 years goes to pay the 59-year-old Motquin's medical bills. He already has been hospitalized twice this year for treatment of a heart ailment that forced him to retire from his machinist job four years ago.

"But thank God we have the money," Mrs. Motquin said. "Without it I would have had to go back to work and I have diabetes and some days can't get out of bed myself."

Because of the drain on their winnings, the Motquins still live in the modest four-room mobile home they owned before their lucky purchase.

The home is just blocks from O'Hare Airport and every few minutes a plane passing overhead forces them to shout to be heard. But they say they love the neighborhood and want to stay.

"We do the same things we've always done," Mrs. Motquin said. "I don't know why money changes some people, it hasn't changed us one bit."

She remembers vividly the circumstances surrounding her lucky lottery ticket purchase and proudly displays a scrapbook of congratulatory cards and newspaper clippings about the prize.

"I WENT TO BUY a quart of milk and a newspaper at the nearby store and the clerk begged me to buy it because it was the last Grand Slam ticket she had to sell," Mrs. Motquin said. "I dumped the change out of my purse and had $1.01 so I took it."

She took the ticket home, laid it on a living room shelf and forgot about it. Later, after the winning numbers were announced, the grocery clerk told her she was $100,000 richer.

"I felt like somebody jumping on a trampoline when I found out," she said. "It was a strange feeling, a wonderful feeling because I knew my husband could retire with peace of mind."

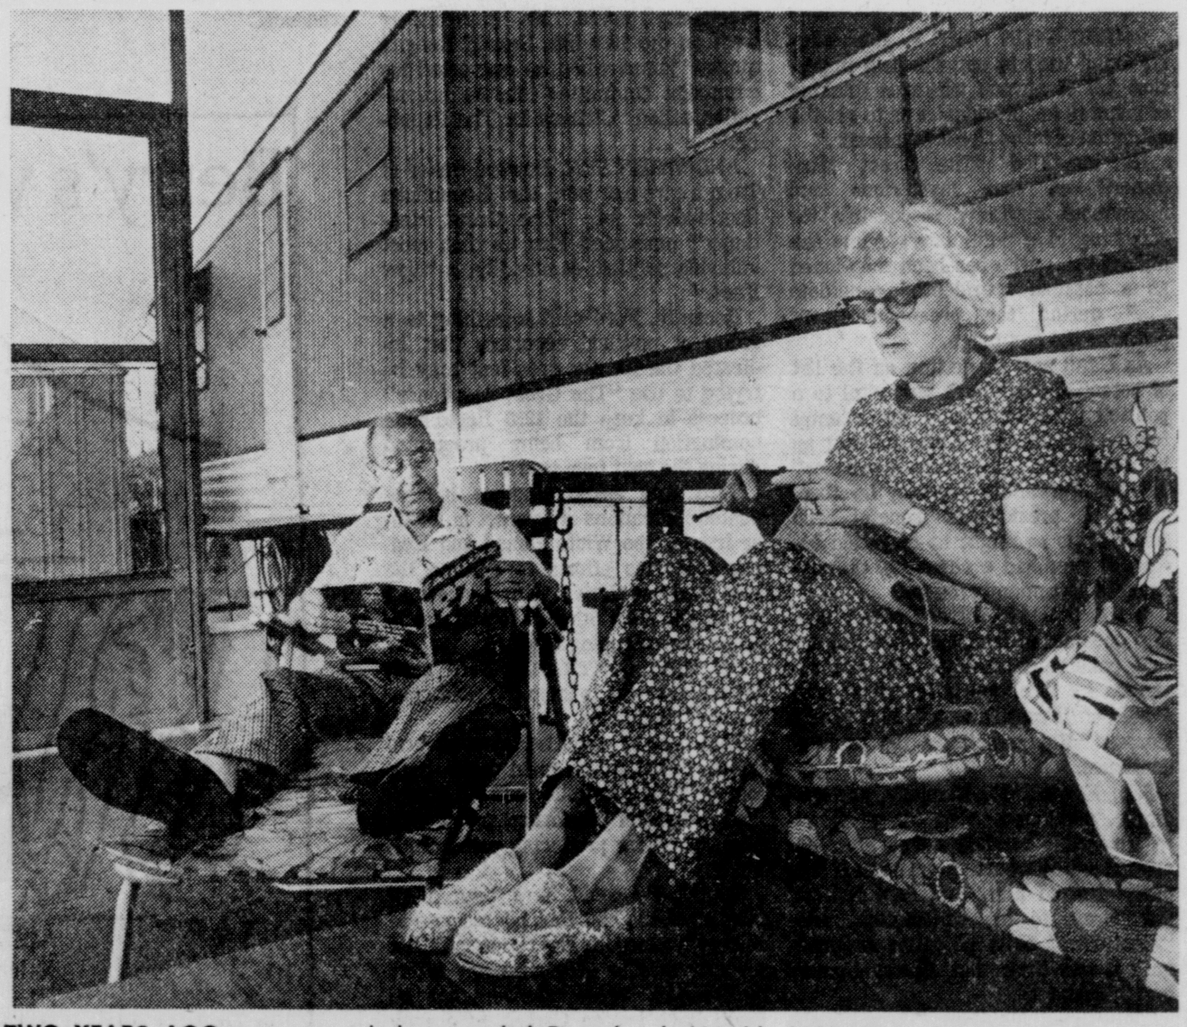
The Motquins spend their days together sewing and reading in the living room of their mobile home, much as they did before their luck changed.

THEIR ONLY purchases with the prize money have been a larger metal storage shed for the backyard and a 1975 Buick, for which they are still making monthly payments.

Other than occasional trips to visit their son, Darwin, and his family in Greenfield, Wis., the Motquins stay at home. They say they are content with what they have.

"There really isn't anything we want," Motquin said. "After 35 years of marriage you don't need any furniture or household items."

His wife finishes his thought. "There's nothing in the world we want that we don't have. We're just content to be together."



TWO YEARS AGO a grocery clerk persuaded Deloris Motquin to buy her first Illinois state lottery ticket. That $1 purchase t-brought her and her husband, Harold, $100,000 and a secure future. The Motquins still ive in the same Des Plaines mobile home park as they did before their lucky purchase.

Graduates face their futures with our hopes

This week the annual crop of high school graduates will march to the tune of "Pomp and Circumstance" under the watchful — and misty — eyes of parents, grandparents and teachers.

High school graduations have an enduring quality, surviving all the changes in society over the years and remaining one of the significant milestones in most persons' lives.

The author of a recent book asked the question "Is There Life after High School?" and came up with the answer that for many persons the self-images and accomplishments of the high school years endure throughout adulthood.

For the students — and there are plenty of them — who haven't joined the ranks of "class leaders" and who are looking forward to breaking the mold when they leave high school, it is small comfort to be told the high school years are the "best" of their lives.

That value judgment is frequently imposed on teenagers by adults whose memories of high school — and graduation — have dimmed with time. High school, particularly today when such issues as drugs, sex and delinquency are widely discussed, can't be an easy place to spend four years. Teens in the Northwest suburbs can face all kinds of large and small crises, from not having a date to the prom to having to help a friend through a parental divorce.

All these experiences will combine, along with the academic achievements of a new graduate, to help shape the future. For most Northwest suburban high school grads, the future will include college. Whether or not they graduate, most will at least start more schooling.

The graduates will face a rapidly changing society, a world where such diverse developments as the pocket calculator and the energy crisis could become familiar in just the four years they spent in high school.

Probably every high school graduating class in history has been told by commencement speakers that it faces troubled times.

That remains true for the class of 1977.

But it is also true that every group of high school graduates, whether they faced war, depression or other crisis, has managed, over all, to muddle through, preserving this country's freedom and its heritage.

We have faith that the 1977 crop will follow that particular American tradition.

Outlaw betting services

Arlington Park Race Track opens Monday faced with what a state official describes as one of the most serious challenges in Illinois horse racing history.

The problem, according to William Masterson, secretary of the Illinois Racing Board, is that the plethora of messenger betting services that have opened up in the city and suburbs are bleeding the race tracks dry.

Much of the money that is put down at the messenger parlours is never delivered to the race track windows. As a result, track betting receipts were down $16 million this spring compared to last year.

If that were not serious enough, messenger betting is also reducing attendance at race tracks, down 21 per cent compared to last year. With the loss of patrons comes lost admission, parking and concession revenues. Add the missed wagering and you have a prescription for the financial ruin of Illinois race tracks.

Horse racing is a business and like any other commercial enterprise is subject to the vicissitudes of the market place. There is no God-given right to run a race track and make a profit.

But horse racing also is a unique enterprise. It is a sport as rich in tradition and color as any and it is an activity from which the state derives a significant amount of tax money.

Arlington Park is working hard to overcome the damage that messenger betting has caused the industry. Special promotions are planned during the track's 50th anniversary year and Joseph Joyce, track president, promises the very best in racing.

But the track needs some help. The Illinois General Assembly is considering two bills that would outlaw the messenger betting services. They are near final passage and if the legislature acts soon, a bill can be signed into law by Gov. James Thompson to be effective July 1. That would protect the last three months of Arlington's meeting and restore financial balance to racing at other tracks in the seasons to come.

The state has a self-interest in protecting its revenue interest in horse racing. The fans have a stake in seeing that a popular sport does not die.

Arlington Park Race Track has enjoyed 50 years as one of the nation's premier racing sports. It deserves a fair chance at another 50 years of fine horse racing.

Graduation 1977

All admired his success

Jim Bishop

Eddie Lacey's restaurant was so plush that if it caught fire it would take a million to restore the men's room. The walls were soft suede. The tables were graced with gold lace and small lamps of old flame. The waiters sent their fingers out to be manicured.

A steak at Lacey's wasn't food; it was an event, like the Bicentennial. A deep pile, green rug muffled all sound. The shrimp were pedigreed. The place with between New York's Park and Fifth Avenues, four steps down into grandeur.

Everyone admired Lacey. Except the competition. And all those gauche rich who couldn't get a reservation. He was a tall, gaunt man with windblown wheat on his head. The only thing artificial about Eddie was his smile. He used it instead of words.

IT WAS ON NOW. There was a temporary dais at the end of the big room and Lacey was sitting there with his Ruth. So was the archbishop. Two chairs were empty. The district attorney and his wife were due at eight. It was nine and after, and some of the guests were slopping up the third round of daiquiries.

Every year Lacey sponsored this dinner for the Chamber of Commerce. It selected "The Man of the Year." The proceeds went to the home for unwanted infants. One year Eddie designated Rockefeller to present the award; the next year it was the mayor; another it was the foreign minister of France.

The chamber's choice was in a sealed envelope before Eddie. He wasn't concerned with the mystery. Where, he wondered, was the D.A.? Chuck Doody was one of those relentless prosecutors who is always running for governor next year. They say Chuck would chop his mother if he caught her crossing a street against the lights.

LACEY WAS STILL seething when the district attorney arrived in dinner jacket, his wife on his arm. Lacey stood to flag the applause down, but Doody grabbed the mike by the throat and said, "There is no forgiveness for this. I don't tolerate tardiness in my office, but, ladies and gentlemen, I assure you that it was a worthy cause.

"I'm sure some of you remember Irish Teddy McManus. Thirty years ago he was as good a welter as there was — except for Mickey Walker. Well, you read the papers. McManus quit the ring, or the ring quit him. He became a thief. For five solid years I've been trying to nail him on the Crawford robbery. We knew he did it. Irrish Teddy knew he did it.

"Tonight, the jury took a little longer to convince. Anyway, I'm sorry." He reached for the pristine envelope. "Let us find out who our honored guest is."

LACEY STUDIED his fingers. Very few people knew that Eddie had discovered Irish Teddy a long time ago. The skinny kid had been an amateur in Jersey — "a fury of leather," one boxing writer had called him.

The kid was almost good enough to get to the top. Lacey had been his secret manager, cutting himself in for 50 per cent off the top, making McManus pay for his own training.

Almost is a limping word. McManus fought in some of the big ones at Madison Square Garden; he outpointed McLarnin in twelve. Fighters are like stage beauties. They age overnight and refuse to die.

Lacey had his restaurant, but he wouldn't give a stale roll to Irish Teddy. Softly, persuasively, he touted McManus onto rich couples who were in his restaurant, and who could be robbed at leisure. After a couple of years, the detectives of Manhattan East knew the identity of the Cat Burglar, but couldn't catch him.

THE CRAWFORD affair involved an actress. She and her husband were dining at Lacey's when Eddie was told to get into her apartment and go only for jewelry. The following noon he showed up with a diamond ring.

Lacey scratched a mirror with it. "Give you a C," he said. The old fighter looked hurt. "Come on, Eddie," he said. "That's real and i'm broke." Lacey spoke like an indulgent father. "It's hot, Teddy, I'll give you 300 or get the hell out of my place."

IRISH TOOK the money. He was too dumb to fence it anywhere else. Eddie Lacey gave it to his wife. "You always wanted a good ring," he said. "This is almost four karats flawless. You get it if you put it in the bank vault for three years. Okay?" She nodded.

The ring disappeared. It required years and good police work to nail Irish, but they had him. Lacey reached over to his wife's hand and turned her ring upside down.

The D.A. opened the envelope. "Well, I'll be —" he shouted. "The Man of the Year is our own Eddie Lacey. It's about time." . . .

'Great Mentioner' starts early for '80

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK
(Commentary)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Morris Udall used to say the first important job of anyone who was thinking of running for president was to get the attention of "The Great Mentioner."

He identified "The Great Mentioner" as that mysterious and anonymous authority responsible for attaching to a politicians's name the phrase ". . . who has been mentioned as a possible presidential candidate . . ." during the preannouncement phase of the campaign.

As Udall saw it, getting on the list of potential candidates was vital to a politician contemplating an attempt for the presidency. While making an impression on "The Great Mentioner" did not guarantee success, he theorized, a presidential hopeful who failed to do so might be forgotten before he ever had a chance to do anything to be remembered for.

"THE GREAT MENTIONER" usually goes out of business after the actual candidates emerge and are arranged by "Political Observers" into a field of "Front Runners" and "Dark Horses." But sometimes the process continues.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, for example, continued to be "mentioned" as a possible candidate long after he announced he wouldn't run even if the party drafted him. And Sen. Hubert Humphrey, to his satisfaction, was "mentioned" as a potential nominee until it was clear that Jimmy Carter had it locked up.

"The Great Mentioner" traditionally opens shop soon after the returns of the last election are in.

When President Ford, in his final State of the Union address, ad libbed a line hinting that he might seek the presidency again, he immediately went on the 1980 list. Ronald Reagan quickly joined when he converted his campaign committee into an organization called "Citizens for The Republic."

AND WHEN SEN. Howard Baker of Tennessee won the Republican floorleader's job, "The Great Mentioner" embraced him as that most valuable political commodity, a "New Face."

Recently, Ford said something to a group of political reporters that indicated the former president may be trying to use "The Great Mentioner" process to keep the 1980 Republican nomination from being preempted during the next four years.

Ford was asked whether his repeated indications of interest in another try for the White House and Reagan's obvious efforts to assume the role of conservative GOP spokesman would not keep other potential candidates from stepping forward.

ON THE CONTRARY, Ford said, his purpose was to keep the field open for new candidates.

That answer could be taken several ways. First, Ford could have been joking. That possibility can be examined in light of the former president's past record for producing political hilarity.

Second, he could have been dropping a serious hint that his purpose in seizing a place on the "mention" list for 1980 was to neutralize any effort by Reagan, whose admirers say he could have beaten Carter, to occupy the political vacuum left by Ford's defeat. In light of what may be an escalating struggle between the center and the right for control of the Republican party, this possibility may have some credence.

He disagrees on planner

I disagree with Ms. Pollack and Wilks Fence Post letter of May 28th calling for a Planning Pro to be hired by Mount Prospect. The village already has eight professional planners, including the village attorney, earning in excess of $27,000 a year. They are called department directors. At the head of this group to direct and coordinate village planning we have the seventh highest paid manager in 135 Chicago Metropolitan area communities. These people, together with our village board, know far better what this village needs, than a so called "pro" from out of town with a briefcase at a cost including a secretary of $36,000 a year.

Ms. Pollack and Wilks evidently do not realize that once the village hires an employe we have him, or a replacement, from then on out. They state that the first year salary would cost us nothing and that there are no strings attached to the federal grant. True, bu tI, amongst many others, do not want the taxpayers to pickup the string of salaries from then on. They are also in error that this is the first grant to our village.

They are concerned that the very expensive village comprehensive plan will sit on a shelf. Again wrong, the comprehensive plan was put together by dedicated village citizens and employes. It is the village board's and administration's guidance for our future village. The downtown renewal plan should gather dust of a shelf. The downtowns of cities and villages died with the advent of shopping centers and malls. Revival is far beyond the means or value to village taxpayers. A commercial developer would not touch it.

There is one point only upon which Ms. Pollack and Wilks and I can agree. In their letters they state "We urge citizens to immediately verbalize their concerns about this issue to the mayor and trustees."

I have, before the board and in writing. Have you village taxpayer? It's your money.

Worthy of note

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Officer Al Jurs of the Rolling Meadows Police Department.

On Monday, May 23, I called the Police Department to report that my parents Mr. and Mrs. Michael R. Barrett had heard noises in their fireplace chimney.

Within minutes Officer Jurs arrived and discovered a mother raccoon and six babies nesting in the chimney.

Since he ran into some trouble because of so many raccoons he had to enlist the aid of Officer Bedell and between the two of them they handled the situation with great expertise and were very professional.

'I have come from far to try to end the Star Wars'

CIA foreign press meddling may end

Charles B. Seib

WASHINGTON — Slowly and painfully the truth comes out.

Back in 1973 we first learned the CIA used journalists as agents and news organizations as covers. The disclosure came from William Colby, then CIA director, who also said he would cut back his agency's involvement with the press.

Since then there have been a series of similar revelations and promises of change. Details were different each time, but it was clear the CIA was using the press and hated to give it up. As to specifics — the names of journalists who served the agency and news organizations that cooperated — the agency resolutely stonewalled. And the news business, usually so resourceful in digging out secrets, contented itself with pompous resolutions and expressions of dismay.

The other day, however, a tiny piece of the puzzle dropped into place. Richard S. Salant, president of CBS News, disclosed that in the 1950s and early 1960s the network worked closely with the CIA. It let agents monitor films and correspondents' reports not used on the air. Foreign correspondents who came home for year-end broadcasts were debriefed by Allen Dulles, CIA boss at the time. Salant also indicated at least two of the network's employes worked closely with the agency — just how closely is not clear.

AS IS CUSTOMARY in such matters, there is confusion over the extent and circumstances of the CIA-CBS cooperation. Sig Mickelson, who headed CBS News in the 1950s, said it was a matter of "sharing information" and that it was done at the implied direction of CBS board chairman William S. Paley. A spolesman for Paley said Paley doesn't remember it that way.

Both Mickelson and Salant, who said he ended the arrangement, have defended it as a by-product of the Cold War. But the CIA's involvement with the news media was not just a Cold War phenomenon. It continued into the very recent past. We cannot be entirely sure it isn't continuing now, abroad if not at home.

There still is much to be learned. Other pieces of the puzzle will fall into place, one by one, and eventually we may get a picture of what went on and who was involved.

But what about the present? The best source these days is Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, whose Senate Intelligence Committee appears to be trying to give CIA the close congressional oversight that has been lacking so many years.

INOUYE RECENTLY assured members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors the CIA finally has stopped using American journalists. That merely means the agency is honoring a pledge it made more than a year ago. Assuming there are no hidden gimmicks, it is welcome news.

Inouye's report on CIA involvement in foreign journalism was less heartening. He said he hoped someday he would be able to say no members of the press, foreign or domestic, were involved in U.S. intelligence activities, "but I am sorry I cannot do so this afternoon."

He did report, however, that "certain covert activities involving foreign press" have been ended and that he favored a flat prohibition against such activities. He also indicated a majority of committee members agreed with him, which raises the strong possibility Congress will act to end all CIA press involvement, foreign and domestic.

If that happens, and if Congress can make it stick, an embarrassing double standard that has been tolerated by the American news business will end.

WHILE NEARLY ALL American journalists would agree that espionage and U.S. journalism should not be mixed, they have been much less disturbed by CIA meddling with foreign media. At the same time, the CIA, while surrendering — ever so slowly — its involvement with the American media, has insisted it must retain the option of manipulating the press abroad.

Now it appears the agency is about to be forced to surrender that option. This is good news for several reasons.

First, as long as the CIA feels free to tamper with the foreign press, there is the danger that material it plants will return to this country in dispatches by correspondents unaware that they are peddling tainted merchandise.

SECOND, THE CIA involvement with the media here and abroad has hampered American efforts to fight an international movement toward government control of news by making it difficult to refute charges the American press itself is a tool of government.

There is a third reason for welcoming an end to CIA press involvement that is less selfish, nationally and professionally. In the end it is the most persuasive reason of all:

President Carter has declared America's commitment to human rights. Surely among those rights are political and social freedom. And surely such freedoms can exist only in societies of informed people — that is, societies with a free, uncorrupted press.

So for Americans to profess a belief in human rights and yet tolerate corruption of the press of other countries by an agency of the U.S. government could not be seen, around the world, as the grossest hypocrisy. And that is what it would be.

Communist threat leaves ordinary Thais wondering

by FREDERIC A. MORITZ

BANGKOK, Thailand — In one of Bangkok's hundreds of open-air restaurants a young automobile mechanic looks up from his bowl of meat and noodles:

"In five years the Communists will be in Bangkok. The rich will be able to leave, but what about us?" he wonders out loud to a visiting journalist.

The mechanic's comment underscores a concern shared by many Thais — rich as well as poor — these days. To a large number of them a question mark hangs over Thailand's future.

IN FACT, THERE ARE several important questions hanging over Thailand — questions whose roots lie in the 1975 Communist victories in nearby South Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos, not to mention the military coup here last October that ended a two-year experiment with democracy. They include:

- Will the military-backed government here be able to inspire local as well as foreign confidence? Or will all the talk of a Communist threat scare off both local and foreign investment and ensure a gradual economic decline?
- Will the new government be able to pull the country together so the traditions of loyalty to Buddhism and the throne can survive? Or will the country slip into a downward spiral of political instability that even the traditional unifying force, loyalty to the throne, will be unable to halt?
- Is the so-called "domino theory," used to justify American involvement in Southeast Asia, valid? And will the gradually increasing guerrilla forces gain new respectability — and larger numbers of previously anti-Communist recruits — thus making the goal of winning power easier in the long run?

The signs of concern are not difficult to spot. Chinese businessmen talk of shifting their assets outside Thailand. Secretaries in some foreign embassies ask their employers for help in emigrating "if the situation gets worse." College professors ask visitors about living costs, interest rates, and job opportunities elsewhere.

In the past, Thais have had the reputation of resisting the lure of immigration to places like the United States, Canada, or — closer to home — Australia. They have preferred their own culture and life-style to those of Western countries, but now those who can are beginning to "take out insurance."

Americans, who once justified their involvement in southern Vietnam as necessary to protect Thailand, now talk of slimming down their diplomatic presence here and packing to go home. The size of the section of the United States Embassy responsible for following the status of Communist insurgency is described as declining.

NOT EVERYONE IS packing up to leave or taking a less than enthusiastic view of the country's future, however. For example, Australia is building a large new embassy in Bangkok.

"Whatever happens, Thailand will still be in Asia, and so will Australia," said one diplomat, explaining why his government is investing in the new embassy.

And there are other positive factors that could well influence the future course of this country of more than 40 million people:

- A relatively homogeneous people whose sense of national pride helped in the past to avoid colonial domination by the British and French.
- A wealth of mineral resources such as tin and zinc. If developed, these could be exported in return for foreign exchange that would be useful in financing imports and technology for future growth.
- Rich agricultural lands that produce rice for export to other parts of Southeast Asia. Thailand, in fact, is second only to the U.S. in rice exports.
- Forest resources that yield natural rubber and teak for profitable export. The rubber plantations particularly have a promising future because of the high price of competing synthetic rubber, which is derived from crude oil.
- The relatively underpopulated countryside. Despite major population increases in the last century, Thailand's average density of about 200 people per square mile compares favorable with, say, Vietnam or the Philippines, where the densities are in the area of 350.

The Communist insurgency movement is estimated to number a little more than 9,000 people and is thought to be growing by about 4 per cent a year. So far its success is limited, experts suggest, by a failure to develop a true Thai "identity." Most of its leaders are thought to be of Chinese descent and Vietnamese training.

Still there are many in this country, Thais and foreigners alike, who worry that unless the government can develop or otherwise exploit these positive factors soon, their usefulness may be lost. In fact, one finds two "scenarios" for change constructed by these people.

THE FIRST IS THE "Burma model" in which fear of communism or governmental instability scares off investment so that economic growth declines. Under this scenario those who can do so (such as business people and government officials, including the military) try harder to profit while they can as the future looks bleaker.

The second is the "Vietnam model" in which spreading disillusionment with a heavy-handed central government affords rural Communist insurgents new respectability. As the insurgency takes on a nationalistic identity, recruits come in increasing numbers, and a new generation of leaders is developed, the country becomes polarized between these left-wing revolutionaries and a rigid, conservative military.

Logic of anti-abortionist criticized

Fence post

letters to the editor

Jack Sharkey's comparison of abortion to suicide is a masterpiece of nonscientific nonsense. All he has done is use the typical anti-abortionist tactic of false comparison of a circular argument that appeals not to reason, but to the emotions of the simple-minded — a lot of big shadow, but no real substance.

Suicide — the self-destruction of a fully developed human being — is as far removed from the termination of a pregnancy as an iceberg is from a sand dune. A fetus is no more a fully developed human being than an acorn is an oak tree, although there are those anti-abortionists who are so stupid as to believe that a fetus is a 3-inch long perfect little human being.

Ah, but the fetus will develop into a human being. So what ? There isn't anything "sacred" about human life. Intelligent people recognize no categorical imperative to live, but rather to live well.

It also might surprise Mr. Sharkey to learn many states no longer consider suicide a crime, because intelligent legislators realize that any statute against suicide was setting a premium upon truly effective attempts to end one's existence in this time continuum.

Rights come from "God?" It's nice to know that Mr. Sharkey, and people like him, know what "God" thinks and wants — amazing! Until the advent of science and Humanism, another right that came from "God" was the "Divine Right of Kings." During the Middle Ages, it also was "the will of God" to persecute heretics. A heretic was any ptrson who was non-Catholic. Almost 12 million men, women, and children were tortured and murdered because of this "right." History refers to this obscenity as the Spanish and the Roman Inquisitions — "sacred" murder in the name of "God."

It might surprise Mr. Sharkey to know the majority of our founding fathers were not Christians but deists. Tom Jefferson was an atheist who often referred to organized religion as a "giant boil on the backside of humanity."

Inalienable rights . . to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness? None of this has to do with abortion. It does mean among other things, that no group, religious or otherwise, has the right to impose its particular views and/or beliefs on the rest of society. That is exactly what the loud-mouthed antiabortionists are trying to do: legislate their religious beliefs so that these beliefs are forced on the entire United States.

Poll after poll has revealed that the majority of Americans favor the choice of abortion being left to the individual, even though many of those polled would not personally have an abortion. Not Mr. Sharkey! He knows what "God" wants and the rest of the United had better believe it or burn in hell.

With HomeCard™ you can make deposits or withdrawals on your savings account at all Dominick's Finer Foods stores throughout the Chicago area.* Later, it is planned that more retail stores will participate and, of course, HomeCard™ can be used at all Home Federal offices. It makes a HomeCard™ account the most convenient, quickest and easiest-to-use savings account in Chicagoland.

It can save you time.

You can also cash personal checks with your HomeCard™ at any Dominick's Finer Foods store once you've opened an account.* That can be a big help when you're short of cash.

It can save you trouble.

Your HomeCard™ account earns 5¼% interest, compounded daily, from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal. Now you can keep money in your savings account that you used to keep in cash, or in your checking account, and earn interest right up to the day you make your withdrawal.

It can save you lost interest.

With HomeCard™ you get a quarterly statement mailed to you. It shows all of your transactions for that period, clearly identified as to where they were made—specific store location or Home Federal office—plus all the interest you've earned and your current balance.

It can save you confusion.

Your savings are always around when you need them as long as HomeCard™ is in your pocket or purse—even nights and weekends.[1] It's nice to know you're just a little better prepared for the unexpected.

It can save you embarrassment.

Chemist exchanges her lab for kitchen

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

She sits behind a neatly arranged desk, smartly attired in a brown velvet suit, and the afternoon sun slants rays off the angles of her pretty face. An architect's rendition in warm water colors is propped up on a table behind her. Blueprints are at arm's reach.

This is the executive suite, 1977 style. The long brown hair cascades modishly down both sides of Danielle Carlisle's face. She whisks a strand away self-consciously. Danielle isn't quite comfortable being in the vortex of the decision-making process.

But she has made a total commitment to the entrepreneurial life.

FOR 16 YEARS, Ms. Carlisle was a scientist — a serious research laboratory assistant whose field was the study of lung diseases. Most recently she concentrated on pulmonary physiology at the biochemistry laboratory in the Stanford University Medical Center.

Now Danielle is occupied with such exotic tour de forces as concombre farcis, nymphes a l'aurore and scampi denise — these are classic culinary endeavors that are prototypical of her new life.

Danielle conceived and directs the California Culinary Institute in San Francisco, one of only four schools in the world — and the newest—dedicated to the proposition that there should be more people who know how to cook haute cuisine.

HOW DID A NICE young chemist wind up in the kitchen — figuratively, of course?

She first seriously nurtured the culture for this culinary project last September while she still was commuting from her apartment in San Francisco south to Palo Alto. But the germination probably occurred a couple of years ago when Danielle was in London to attend an International Congress on Lung Diseases at the Royal Festival Hall.

The lectures began to drone, and Danielle got to thinking about her palate. In a local newspaper she noted that a Cordon Bleu school was in session. So she quietly enrolled, stretched out her stay in England and became personally immersed in culinary art.

AS AN AVOCATIONAL chef, she has attended French, Italian, Chinese and Moroccan cooking classes for short sessions. But Danielle also sensed a gnawing void in San Francisco, a bastion of good eating that ranks only behind New York in this country.

There was no place where a gourmet could learn the art of fine cooking. There was no place a person could learn formally, under intensive training, how to become a master chef. The usual route was apprenticeship in a restaurant, a tedious process at best.

So Danielle, who professes a passion for life in the laboratory, went out and raised a quarter of a million dollars on the strength of an idea and is on the verge of opening the California Culinary Institute. The only other schools like it are in London, Paris and New York.

FOR $3,000 ANNUAL tuition, in a two-year course under the supervision of four master chefs and graced by tht residency of such culinary giants as Charles Finance, a person can learn the art of a master chef.

This is to meet, according to Danielle, a pressing need in this country. "Every year," she says, "people spend $30 to $35 million eating out. I think people are learning how to eat."

On the top floor of a squat five-story building where Del Monte foods once had its world headquarters, Danielle has fashioned her new world.

Starting June 27, from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m., 100 would-be master chefs will start absorbing the art of cooking for the masses.

"THIS ISN'T FOR the housewife out to please her husband's palate," she emphasizes. "I've screened all our prospective students thoroughly. Of the 20 accepted thus far, all have degrees.

"I'm risking everything I've got in this world that this venture will go. If it doesn't, it'll be a total wipeout."

Danielle, who is a transplant from Pittsburgh and has a degree in chemistry from the university there, was reluctant to make a complete break with her biomedical research at Stanford. The medical center authorities, who praised her as "highly motivated and capable," tried to discourage her. But there was no way to make the scientific milieu compatible with an all-out foray into the kitchen.

THE INSTITUTE will also function as a working restaurant for people from the nearby financial district of San Francisco, and there is an executive dining room for special parties. Each day's menu, prepared by the students, will feature the cooking of two different countries.

There are exotic accoutrements such as an ice sculpture class at noon daily. The curriculum extends even to such progressive courses as "catastrophe" cooking(there is the omnipresent earthquake threat in the area).

WHY DID Danielle Carlisle leave the scientific world to take on the high risk venture of a cooking school? "There was the intrigue of starting my own business," she says.

Why did Danielle Carlisle defect from a world in which she worked alongside Nobel Prize winners to take on a high-risk, almost dilettantish venture such as a cooking school?

"There was," she says with a shrug, "the intrigue of starting your own business. Three out of four fail. This will be the one that doesn't fail."

She says it with scientific resolution.

WWMM introduces 'women's' broadcast

"Northwest Neighbor," a woman-oriented program premiering June 13, will be broadcast on WWMM-92.7 FM, Arlington Heights, each Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 to 10:30 a.m.

"Northwest Neighbor" will cater primarily to the Northwest suburban woman, discussing a variety of topics of interest to her, her family and lifestyle. Frequent guest appearances will be made by local professionals as well as nationally known individuals. Guests will be interviewed by the program hosts, special panels of local women and listeners.

Some of the topics to be covered on "Northwest Neighbor" include: the working woman with a family; the pressures of being a housewife in a world that encourages today's women to become part of the working world; effectiveness of suburban schools; and homemaking ideas.

Local guests invited to take part will encompass such people as bankers, businesspeople, government leaders, unusual occupation holders and newsmakers in general.

Local panels who will be asked to participate in the program are to come from clubs or service organizations that have a special interest in the topic being discussed that date. Three people will participate on any given day. Phone calls will be limited to three minutes and will be accepted as time permits.

"Northwest Neighbor" will be hosted by Louise Parrot and Matt Bisbee.

Not just kids' stuff

Magazine faces adult realities

by RICHARD HUGHES

After a spectacular beginning, the kids at "Children's Express" in New York are battling the realities of the publishing world to keep their unique monthly magazine alive.

They and their adult advisers are convinced the magazine will survive not only as a successful venture into journalism, but also as a business.

The "Express" gained worldwide attention at the 1976 Democratic National Convention by scooping some of the world's best journalists with the report that President Carter had picked Sen. Walter F. Mondale as his running mate.

The staff has since put out five editions of a slick, full-color magazine. It has broken new ground for youthful readers on such subjects as child abuse, alcoholic parents and broken homes.

"I NEVER dreamed we would be catapulted so quickly into such a broad range of substantive issues," says Robert Clampitt, the 49-year-old founder and publisher.

The original publication was a four-page black-and-white tabloid newspaper. In November, it became a glossy magazine that sells for 50 cents on newsstands.

The May issue is typical of its mix of light and serious topics.

The cover story is about 16-year-old jockey Steve Cauthen. In a sidebar interview female jockey Mary Bacon observes: "There's no difference in 100 pounds of girl and 100 pounds of boy 'cause you're both on a 1,200 to 1,500 pound horse."

THE ISSUE also includes a story about a little-known legal battle to prevent children being committed to mental institutions without a proper hearing.

Five children (the oldest, 12, and the youngest, 9) interviewed attorney David Ferleger who, for the past five years, has sought the release of five children from a Pennsylvania mental institution.

The story observed: "The case is a good thing to fight against because parents don't really think about the children when they send them to these hospitals."

Another story describes a discussion between "Express" reporters and youngsters with retarded brothers and sisters.

"It's pretty scary to have a retarded brother," said an 8-year-old girl.

LITTLE ESCAPES the youngsters' attention. During an interview four of their reporters had with President Carter, the President shook their hands. They noted parenthetically in the story: "He has a hot hand."

Clampitt, an attorney, said he launched "Children's Express" out of concern about the lack of literacy among children and adults.

"It has a significance of where kids are at," he said. "We are becoming a nation of watchers. What is anybody doing to bring kids in an exciting way into literacy?"

He said the magazine gives children a chance to "actively or vicariously react to what's going on out there."

Clampitt and a partner have put $200,000 into the magazine. They have not yet turned the corner financially. They recently scaled down their circulation estimate from 400,000 to 250,000.

THE MAIN PROBLEM is convincing companies that sell products to children to divert some advertising money from Saturday morning television to the print media.

The only adults in the operation are Clampitt, two paid staffers and a small band of dedicated volunteers. The adults deal mostly with financial, advertising and circulation matters. The children do the rest.

Recently, four reporters interviewed actor Tony Randall: Ed Hughes, 10, New Providence, N.J., on his first assignment; and Yvette Kinnick, 12, Jill Clarke, 13, and Frank Visconti, 13, all of New York City.

The associate editor was Bryan Clampitt, the publisher's son. Bryan, 14, originally a reporter, had to drop out or move up as an editor when he turned 14, under the magazine's rules. The adult adviser on the assignment was a volunteer, Suzanne Gluck, 17.

BRYAN SUGGESTED the interview with Randall after hearing the actor had made a record, "Children Are Important, Too." Before the interview, Bryan briefed the reporters and played Randall's record. The children discussed it and questions to ask.

After the interview, each reporter told Bryan, who edited the story, what impressed him or her the most about Randall and his remarks.

As for Randall, he preferred the children to adult interviewers. "They ask better questions," he said. "They don't try to trap one or make one look like a schnook."

Proper sewing of facing keeps lapel in place

Eunice Farmer

Sew simple

Dear Eunice Farmer: It seems like every time I make an unlined, loose-fitting jacket, it falls open all the way down the facing, instead of only at the lapel area. Is there any solution to this, other than a heavy pressing at the lapel line?—Mrs. J.L.

Dear Mrs. J.L.: When you sew the edge of the facing to the garment, don't hold it flat — roll the lapel over your hand the way you want it to lay and pin it in position. Tack the facing lightly, as the buttons and buttonholes will hold the balance of the facing in the correct position.

To shape the lapel area, steam press the lapel and collar area from the inside. When it is fairly moist, turn the garment over and "finger shape" the area.

Hold the fabric in position until it is dry and your lapels should roll beautifully and stay in place.

Dear Eunice Farmer: My daughter wants to learn to sew, but her school doesn't offer a home economics course. Can you give her a few tips?—Mrs. M.T.

Dear Mrs. M.T.: I would send her to a professional sewing class that is designed for girls her age. Often, youngsters will take instruction from an outsider more readily than their parents.

Once your daughter has started sewing and has decided on a particular project, the important thing to remember is that it's going to be HER work. Allow her to choose the pattern and fabric she wants, but remind her that it is best to keep things simple.

You might try a rule I used when my girls were starting to sew. Whenever they wanted a piece of material, they got it — regardless of the price. However, I took the purchase price out of their allowances, and I wouldn't refund the money until the garment was finished. This prevented a lot of projects from being started and never finished.

It is also important to remember that your own attitude towards your daughter's sewing is very important. Often mothers come into my shop, only to tell their daughters, "Don't get anything expensive — you're just going to ruin it." Anything that takes time to learn needs all the encouragement you can give.

This week's winner of the gold blazer buttons is Jeanette Laverty, 1205 W. Crestview Drive, Apt. 210, Lebanon, Pa. 17042. Her tip:

"For an alternative to grippers or snaps for babies' one-piece pants outfits, purchase a piece of one-inch wide velcro the length of the leg and crotch seam.

"Cut the strip in half lengthwise and stitch half of it on one seam and half on the other. It takes only a second to press the strips together, and when changing diapers, they're easier to open than snaps or grippers.

"Be sure, though, to keep the pants leg closed when machine washing, or the velcro will stick to other fabrics."

Dear Readers: I recently judged a home sewing fashion show. These affairs always thrill me when I see something that started as just a piece of cloth turned into a beautiful garment.

However, I was distressed at this show by the number of garments that instantly screamed "homemade." Too often, sewing teachers fail to keep up on the latest sewing and finishing techniques. Often these variables depend on the type of fabric being used (and there are so many new ones), as well as the design of the garment.

If you're "au courant" when sewing, you'll be a fashion winner every time. Remember, when making a garment, you're using up one of our most precious natural resources — time. Make the most of it and create a success!

Lawrence E. Lamb

The doctor says

Damaged skin lies under beautiful tan

Now that summer is here I would like to get a good tan. I always look better tanned than being white as lard. But I'm worried about causing my skin to look old and wrinkled. I've read that the sun ages your skin, but how can I get a sun tan without aging my skin? Also, I've heard that too much sun can cause skin cancer. Is that true?

I'm sure that there are lots of other readers who want to have fun in the sun without paying for it later. Any suggestions?

Incidentally, I'm a blonde and tend to burn easily rather than tan, so it makes it doubly difficult for me.

You are right to be concerned. Underneath nearly every beautiful tan is skin damage. Ultraviolet radiation in the sunshine is a perfect example of a substance that is essential to our health and life, but too much of it can be harmful. The UV radiation is necessary for the energy that enables plants to live, and it stimulates the formation of vitamin D in our skin.

The UV radiation damages the process essential to maintaining the elastic fibers in the skin. This leads to wrinkling of the skin associated with aging. One of the best proofs of the effects of the sun on skin is to look at a protected skin area of an individual who has a wrinkled and weather-beaten face. The protected skin may look youthful and unwrinkled.

It is also true that solar radiation causes skin cancer. That is why most skin cancers are on the face and areas where the skin is exposed to sunlight. Skin cancer is the most common form of cancer. Fortunately, most of them can be completedly cured if they are diagnosed and treated early. But new cops of skin cancer tend to occur, requiring repeated treatments to rid the skin of new new cancers. The best treatment is prevention. To give you more information on skin cancer those brown spots caused by the sun and aging of the skin I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

I am sorry to say there is no way you can get a good tan without damaging your skin. This is particularly true for blonde people like you.

Realizing that people will get a tan and enjoy the outdoors, I can only suggest ways to minimize the damage. The first rule is not to expose your skin for more than 15 minutes a day. Never stay out so long that the skin gets pink. That early pink flush is not a real tan. That comes a few days later and reaches its peak about three weeks after exposure. It is produced by the increased formation of pigment in the deep layers of the skin. This pigment helps to protect the skin from sun damage.

Remember that your face is the area that is most important to protect. If you lie on your back 15 minutes and then on your stomach 15 minutes part of your face will get more than 15 minutes of exposure. I think you should use a sun screen on your face. Increase your time in the sun about five minutes a day — no more.

Fair people like you really need to use a sun screen all year around. I have discussed the various sun screens in The Health Letter I am sending you.

Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Starters are available for sourdough bread

Dear Dorothy: Cliff Mudd asked you how he could get a sourdough starter. We've been buying starters from a San Francisco firm since 1973, following the instructions that come with the packet. My husband says it's the best he has ever tasted. Last December I ordered several loaves from a famous bakery noted for its sourdough bread — to send as gifts. The bread was delicious, but there was little if any difference from the bread I make with the starter.—Mrs. Robert G. Bottorff

Several firms sell sourdough starter, including a gift shop in Alaska. The company Mrs. Bottorff recommends charges $1.50 per package. Anyone interested can have the company's name by sending me a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dorothy: With spectator shoes so popular, I've bought an expensive pair. The problem is in the cleaning. How do you separate the blue and white areas in cleaning? Is there a fixative?—C. Koch

After checking several shoe cleaners I see why you ask. The cost makes you stop. You have to pay with time and patience for the luxury of owning spectator shoes. Fixatives are out, one cleaner said. He puts masking tape on the blue part, then polishes the white area. He takes off the masking tape and does the blue part very carefully. He says masking tape cannot be put on the white after it's been polished.

Dear Dorothy: This is directed to all those who have had trouble removing mineral deposits from toilets. I recommend vinegar and baking soda. Get out all the water and pour on enough vinegar to cover the spot. Then add a small box of baking soda, let stand for several hours and scrub. I've had very good luck eliminating limestone deposits this way.—M. Lensay

•Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Juniors wind up successful year

Nearly $1,000 has been divided among the various philanthropies of the Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club, including allocations to libraries, paramedics, police and fire cadets, and others.

The club was recently presented with the 7th District Gold Action award, and the Federation Achievement award by the Illinois Federation of Woman's Clubs, and placed first in International Affairs for International Hospitality.

Buffalo Grove Juniors also won a number of 7th District awards, placing first in Conservation, Fine Arts and International Affairs; second in Public Affairs and Health, and winning honorable mention and special recognition in three other areas.

Anyone seeking membership information about the club may call 541-7241.

Parents take potluck

Parents Who Care will hold a June potluck luncheon Monday, June 20, at 12:30 p.m. in Webster Hall of first Congregational Church, Des Plaines. The Public is invited.

Featured speaker will be Joan Anderson, author, who will discuss "Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Being a Fulfilled Housewife, but Were Too Tired to Ask."

Tickets are $2; babysitting will be available at a nominal fee. For further information or reservations, readers may call Kathy Bierman, 298-4096, or Linda Neff, 298-8346, before June 13.

Happenings

Discocktail party

New Perspective, a group of single professionals and executives 23 to 45 years, will hold a "Discocktail" party Sunday, June 12, at Some Other Place, Glenview. The party will be held from 5 to 9 p.m. Those wishing further information may call 299-5566.

Sisterhood to lunch

"Meanwhile, Back at Wit's End," a program based on columns by humorist Erma Bombeck will be presented by Dorothy Posey at the Sunday, June 12, luncheon of Beth Tikvah Sisterhood. The luncheon will be held at Le Gourmet in Arlington Heights, Those wishing further information may call 358-4710.

New Distaff board

Buehler YMCA Distaffs are announcing new officers for the coming club year. Gay Kenna of Palatine is president; Ruth Cox, Barrington, vice president; Betty Bjors, Barrington, and Nancy O'Bradovich, Palatine, secretaries; and Debbie Dowd, Barrington, treasurer.

Proceeds from the Palatine Y auxiliary's fund-raisers this past year purchased equipment for the facility.

Women interested in membership may call 381-3384.

ESA installs

Agatha Prochaska of Hoffman Estates was installed as president of Gamma Theta, Epsilon Sigma Alpha, during a recent awards banquet held at the Sheraton-Inn-Walden, Schaumburg. Others installed were: Gloria McCullough, Long Grove, and Pat Schinka, Hoffman Estates, vice presidents; treasurer, Leanna Wu, Algonquin.

Dorothy Latko, Hoffman Estates, Illinois State Council Northern District Coordinator, received the "Outstanding Member" award and will be entered in the state competition next fall.

KC greets officers

An installation ceremony recently introduced new officers of Holy Rosary Auxiliary of the Knights of Columbus, Arlington Heights. The rites followed a dinner at the Flaming Torch in Mount Prospect.

Pat Beatty is the new president; Midge Sheehan, vice president, Carolyn Rogers, secretary; Thelma Helminski, treasurer, and Barbara Vincenzo, Mae Gallagher and Marie McIntosh, trustees.

Ms. Gallagher, the retiring president, received a memento of her office and Ms. Beatty announced donations of the past year. The Auxiliary supported Maryville Academy, the KC Sick Fund and St. Teresita, besides purchasing equipment for the local KC clubhouse.

Lorraine Dunteman is new district director

Lorraine Dunteman of Barrington, immediate past president of the Suburban Cook County Homemakers Extension Association, recently was installed District II director of the Illinois Homemakers Federation.

In her new position she will act as liaison between the nine counties in the district, which includes Cook, and the state board.

An extension homemaker member since 1955, Lorraine served in many capacities for her local unit, Hanover-Schaumburg, until moving to Barrington in 1968. At that time she was so involved with the Suburban Cook County HEA that she became a member-at-large while devoting all her time to affairs at the administrative level.

Lorraine Dunteman

A NATIVE of Chicago, Lorraine has had all the responsibilities of a farm wife since her marriage to Marvin Dunteman. The family lived in the Schaumburg area until moving to their present home, a grain farm near Barrington.

The busy homemaker also volunteered for many years in 4-H club work, Girl Scouts and PTA. Her six children all grew up in 4-H, and sons Bill, a junior at Barrington High, and Bob, a seventh grader in Middle School, are still active.

The Duntemans' daughters are Susan (Mrs. Bruce Rucks), a business teacher at Conant High School; Judy (Mrs. Mike Lehrer), nurse in a Sun City, Ariz., hospital; Judy's twin, Jean (Mrs. Arland Prestidge), nurse at Geneva Community Hospital; and Karen, a junior at Western Illinois University.

Weddings

Jayne Evans-Edward F. Carpenter

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Carpenter

Edward F. Carpenter of Arlington Heights and his bride, the former Jayne Kingsley Evans of Naperville, are living in DeKalb where he is enrolled in the Northern Illinois University master's program while working for A. O. Smith-Harvestore and she is employed at Nursery School Day Care Center.

Ed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Carpenter, and Jayne were married May 14 in St. Peter and Paul Church in Naperville. The double ring ceremony took place at 1:30 in the afternoon and was followed by a reception for 180 guests at the Thornewild Club in Warrenville.

The couple plans a delayed honeymoon in Alabama in August.

FOR HER MARRIAGE, Jayne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David K. Evans, chose an Empire style gown of white knit jersey with Venise lace trim. A matching lace Camelot headpiece held her chapel-length mantilla veil edged in the same lace, and she carried a cascade of white snowdrift, Garnet roses and stephanotis accented with ivy.

The bride had two honor attendants, her twin sister, Susan K. Jaskot of Virginia Beach, Va., and another sister, Nancy. Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Cathy, Lyn Soucek, Naperville, and Debbie Brock, Hampshire, Ill.

All wore Empire style gowns in soft nile green jersey and picture hats with matching grosgrain ribbon streamers. They carried baskets of yellow daisy pompons, yellow carnations and baby's breath with accents of purple statice.

GLENN KOST, Cary, served as best man. Groomsmen included the bridegroom's brother, Jimmy, Bruce Spiewak, Glenview, Fred Vogt, Palatine, and Kim O'Laughlin, Chicago. Ken Lay and Steve Bartlett, Elmhurst, ushered, and Dave Spiewak, Glenview, read the Scriptures.

Both Ed and Jayne are graduates of Northern Illinois, he in 1972 and she in '77. Ed is taking his master's in business administration.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Hillard

Lynnette Johnson–Edward D. Hillard

A romance that began at Western Illinois University culminated in marriage April 30 for Lynnette Johnson of Arlington Heights and Edward D. Hillard of Alexis, Ill.

Exchanging vows and rings in the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights at 4:30 p.m., the couple then greeted 250 guests at a dinner reception with dancing at Allgauer's Restaurant, Northbrook. They are living in Fox River Grove after a week at Lake of the Ozarks.

Lynnette is the daughter of the Paul Johnsons and Edward the son of the Charles Hillards. She graduated in '72 from Arlington High School and has one semester remaining at Western Illinois before earning a degree. Her husband graduated from Western in '75 and works for RCA Global Communications, Arlington Heights.

DAWN JOHNSON was her sister's maid of honor for the afternoon rites. Bridesmaids were Debby Bunn, Palatine, and Alpha Sigma Tau sorority sisters Mary Ellen Hansen, Arlington Heights, Mary Jean Berta, Coal City, and Ina Hartmann, Hoffman Estates.

The groom's niece, Heidi Hillard of North Henderson, Ill., was flower girl and the bride's cousin, Daryl Howell of Fox River Grove, ring bearer. Both are 8 years old.

The groom chose Lonnie Hillard, his brother from North Henderson, as best man, with his two other brothers, Bruce and Ken, among the groomsmen. The others were Dean Winkelmann, Arlington Heights, and Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity brothers Darrell Limkeman, Cantril, Iowa, and Dan Hogen, Dwight.

Engaged

Danegger-Ford

Cathy Danegger will become the bride of Ken Ford in a July wedding. Announcing the couple's engagement and approaching marriage are Cathy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Danegger of Arlington Heights. Ken is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ford, Chicago.

Cathy is a '73 graduate of Hersey High and a '77 graduate of Northern Illinois University. Her fiance graduated from Northern in 1974 and is employed by E. G. Printing Co., Elk Grove Village.

DiRenzo-Woodburn

Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. DiRenzo, Palatine, announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to Steven Woodburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Woodburn, Lorain, Ohio. The wedding will be in late July.

Patricia graduated from Kent State University and will receive her master's degree in special education this June from the University of Oregon. Steven is a '75 graduate from the University of Oregon where he majored in city planning and architectural design. He is now with a Eugene furniture company.

Snip-Spanske

An August wedding is planned by Judith A. Snip, and George P. Spanske, son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Spanske of Mount Prospect. Judith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd J. Snip of Calgary, Alberta, Canada, former Palatine residents, are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage.

Judith graduated from Palatine High and Harper College. She is also a '76 graduate of Northern Illinois University. George is a graduate of Prospect High and Harper College, and a '74 graduate of North Park College in Chicago. Both are now employed at Wieboldt's at Randhurst.

Phyllis Alexander–William Benson

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Benson

Although both Phyllis G. Alexander and William A. Benson of Hoffman Estates attended Conant High School, they did not meet until they were students at Northern Illinois University. A romance developed and the couple chose this past May 14 for their wedding date.

Phyllis, daughter of Mrs. Florence Woodin, graduated in '75 from Conant and is studying journalism at Northern Illinois. William's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Benson, and he graduated from Conant in '72 and from Northern just a week before the wedding.

Their 2 p.m. ceremony took place in Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, Hoffman Estates, with a buffet reception following in the church hall for 65 guests.

THE BRIDE CHOSE a white satin gown trimmed in lace and a matching lace waist-length veil. Her bouquet was of white carnations, daisies, blue cornflowers and baby's breath.

Her two attendants were gowned alike in blue, the skirts of crepe and the bodice of lace trimmed with white lace. The girls also wore blue and white picture hats and carried blue and white daisies.

Nancy Hundreieser, Hoffman Estates, was maid of honor and the bride's sister, Pam, bridesmaid. The groom was attended by his brother, Bruce, as best man and Chris Colonna, Schaumburg, groomsman.

After their short honeymoon at Pheasant Run, the newlyweds settled in DeKalb.

Admit what bugs you, then handle it

Just one of those weeks. Your work deadlines piled up, unexpected company "dropped in" for a few days, your daughter broke great-grandmother's 100-year old cake platter. Someone even smeared pink bubble gum over the back window of your week-old car.

How are you feeling, now that it's over?

"Individuals differ in how they perceive stress," said Lynn Bredemeyer recently to the Mount Prospect Homemakers' Club. "Where some people see things as stressful, others don't seem to be affected at all."

Mrs. Bredemeyer, a program specialist for North Suburban Cook County Extension Service, was speaking to area Homemakers clubs throughout May on coping with stress.

She defined stress as "excess energy" created by the body for defense. An example of this energy is the flushed, tense feeling experienced when friends are overheard gossiping about you, or the sensation of panic felt after watching your child fall from a swing, she said.

The most frequent sources of stress are fear of physical or psychological danger, too much or too little to do throughout the day, life changes like death of a spouse or divorce, and ambiguity — being uncertain about situations, roles and other people's expectations, she said.

Obviously, continued Mrs. Bredemeyer, stress elicits a variety of responses. One common reaction is aggression, she said.

"Your husband calls two hours before supper and says he's bringing his boss over. What do you do? You give him a piece of your mind, slam the phone and fix dinner. Verbal aggression is extremely useful in some situations. It makes you feel lots better. Too often, though, it's misplaced. We yell at our children and husbands when the stress may have been caused by some one or something else."

Working in the garden, playing the piano, even furiously washing dishes can be ways of physically expending energy caused by stress, she added.

Some persons, in reacting to stress, are not at all aggressive, but withdraw from the situation to slow down the build-up of energy. And some persons can adapt to stress by inventing a solution to the problem.

"This can only happen if the source of stress can be influenced in some way," Mrs. Bredemeyer warned. "Too often, there's not much we can do about the things that cause stress in our lives."

To cope with stress, individuals first must admit to their feelings of fear, identify the source and determine if there is any way to relieve or reduce the stress, she said.

"We'll never eliminate all of those everyday little fears and problems which cause stress," she said. "But we can be constructive in handling the excess energy generated by fear and put our energies to good use."

American TV pushing the Jubilee

No one in the world seems to be celebrating Queen Elizabeth II's Silver Jubilee quite like the Americans.

It's almost like our Bicentennial all over again, but this time in the English commonwealth, where pomp and circumstance are valued above all else.

Each television network is offering its own special coverage of the event.

NBC has its "Today" show crew in London this week for special broadcasts of the morning eye-opener. Host Tom Brokaw and sidekick Jane Pauley will be covering, among other things, the Royal Procession to Saint Paul's Cathedral for Thanksgiving services Tuesday and the Queen's "River's Progress" trip down the Thames by royal barge on Thursday. The "Today" show will be telecast at its normal time, from 7 to 9 p.m., except for Tuesday, the day of the official Jubilee celebration in Britain, when the show will begin airing at 5 a.m.

ABC plans to present its own package of Jubilee coverage, much of which will be worked into the "ABC Evening News with Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters." Ms. Walters will be co-anchoring the show this week from London.

ABC will offer live coverage Tuesday beginning at 4:30 a.m. when Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip the Duke of Edinburgh, leave Buckingham Palace in a jewel encrusted coronation coach for a day of colorful events. The live coverage will continue through 9 a.m. as an expanded edition of the "Good Morning, America" show.

ABC also will air a primetime special, "To the Queen! A Salute to Elizabeth II" Sturday at 8 p.m. which will highlight the reign of Queen Elizabeth and the way the Royal Family lives.

CBS has chosen to cover the Jubilee, especially Tuesday's events, as part of its weekday "Morning News."

Chances are the spectacle and tradition the British so cherish will attract Americans to the tube like bees to honey, although the telecast times (because of the time differences) are ghastly.

David Janssen in "A Sensitive, Passionate Man"

Cavett may get show

Dick Cavett may very well have his own cultural interview show this fall on public broadcasting stations. He made a pilot of an interview with actress Liv Ullman this spring, discussing her career and new autobiography, "Changing." WNET, the New York public broadcasting station that produced the special, is proposing the new half-hour talk show be aired weekdays. The station is also asking the public broadcasting system and individual stations help to finance the project — a request that may stall its syndication nationally.

Meanwhile, here in Chicago, WTTW began airing "Kup's Show" a few months back on Saturdays at 10:30 p.m. Irv Kupcinet would undoubtedly like to syndicate his own talk show nationally and is currently seeking an underwriter to make that possible. Officials of WTTW, Channel 11, insist there is room enough in the public broadcasting system for two personalities like Cavett and Kupcinet. Efforts to nationally syndicate one show will not short-circuit the other, they say.

Cavett's show would be mainly a one-on-one format while Kupcinet airs for a longer period of time, only once a week, chatting with a wide variety of people.

Public broadcast officials will know by the month's end whether enough underwriting can be obtained to go with both Cavett's and Kupcinet's shows on a national basis.

TV NOTES:

• NBC seems to have faired well during the May sweep period, when ratings are recorded by A. C. Nielsen and Arbitron to determine the cost of commercial air time in the fall. The network, which has been number three in ratings during the regular season for the most part, aired a whole slew of specially made movies and pilot shows to boost its ratings. Consequently, NBC came up number one in ratings three out of the four weeks during the May sweep period. ABC barely stayed ahead of NBC in the overall program ratings. Arbitron reported ABC with an average of 16 ratings to NBC's 15.9. CBS was last in both sweep mtasurements with a rating of 15.2. The ratings also indicated a reversal in viewership in Chicago newscasts (reported May 31 in "Today on TV").

• Russ Ewing, the Newcenter Five reporter who monitored telephone conversations of his fellow workers in an attempt to locate and plug information leaks to the press, will receive only oral reprimands from his superiors at WMAQ, Channel 5. Attorneys and investigators from NBC news in New York were in town to examine the situation and determined that Ewing did nothing illegal.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

• Viewers have the chance to see the talented David Janssen in two specials tonight. He will be one of many Hollywood stars performing death-defying acts on CBS's "Circus of Stars" at 7 p.m. on Channel 2.

More importantly, Janssen portrays an alcoholic who falls to the depths of despair. His wife is played by Angie Dickinson in the premiere movie "A Sensitive, Passionate Man," at 8 p.m. on Channel 5. The acting is powerful.

New ideology prepares U.S. business for future

THE FUTURE OF CAPITALI$M

by DAVID R. FRANCIS

Many economists in recent years have examined what Walter W. Heller, President John F. Kennedy's economic adviser, termed "old myths and new realities" in a book published last fall. John Kenneth Galbraith has taken particular pleasure in bursting some of the bubbles of purist views on competition in business. Management expert Peter F. Drucker also has had his crack at economic myths, as have some businessmen over myths about business.

However, Prof. George C. Lodge, of the Harvard Business School has taken the myth-busting rampage down to bedrock. First in an article in the Harvard Business Review, then in a book, "The New American Ideology." Lodge has examined the impact of a dramatically changing ideology on United States institutions, particularly the corporation.

"Ironically," he writes, "we in America have had the notion that 'ideology' is basically a European commodity; a bag of theoretical confusion, whether tagged as socialism, communism, or fascism, which we left in the old country with our ancestors and from which hardheaded Americans are happily free."

Well, Lodge goes on to show this is nonsense. American society does have a dominant set of coherent ideas — an ideology. "No community is more deeply imbued with ideology than ours," he says.

To many economists the ideological and theoretical basis of capitalism needs updating. Somt of the realities of the system have been ignored, such as the power of multinational corporations, the demand for corporate social responsibility, and the growing insistence on higher ethics. David R. Francis, business and financial editor of The Christian Science Monitor, today writes about two economists and their updated theories on capitalism. This is the second of a series on our changing economic system.

The traditional American ideology, notes Lodge, is "Lockean" — derived from the ideas of several 17th-century Elizabethan Englishmen, but especially philosopher John Locke (1632-1704). Its five key components are these:

• Individualism: This is the notion that the community is more than the sum of the individuals in it. Fulfillment lies in an essentially lonely struggle in what amounts to a wilderness where the fit survive. If you do not survive, you are somehow unfit. This is the idea that helps make John Wayne movies fun for Americans.

Closely tied to individualism is the idea of equality, in the sense implied in the phrase "equal opportunity."

• Property rights: The best guarantee of individual rights was held to be the sanctity of property rights. It was even included in the Constitution.

• Competition: Economist Adam Smith articulated the idea that the uses of property are best controlled by each individual proprietor competing in open markets to satisfy individual consumer desires. To a large degree an "invisible hand" would see to the public welfare. This theory still dominates the economic system intellectually.

• The limited state: "In reaction to the powerful hierarchies of late medievalism, the conviction grew that the least government is the best government. We do not mind how big government may get, but we are reluctant to allow it authority or focus. And we resist the idea of planning by government, preferring instead that it respond to crises and to interest groups — whoever has the clout can call the tune."

• Scientific specialization and fragmentation: This, writes Professor Lodge, is a corruption of Newtonian mechanics. It says that if we attend to the parts, as experts and specialists, the whole will take care of itself.

These five components, though often distorted and eroded, have remained the primary source of legitimacy for American institutions. This is so even though such powerful institutions as corporations, the backbone of the economy, have in fact departed substantially from them.

One of the myths arising from this quasi-religious dogma is what Lodge calls "the myth of material growth and progress." The doctrine of individualism implies that man has the will to control events, property, nature, the economy and politics. Under the Darwinian theory of evolution unrestrained competition among men would improve the species and bring progress.

Though its outlines are yet vague, Prof. Lodge sees the development of a new set of ideological values. These are:

• Communitarianism, augmenting and replacing individualism. For most people today, fulfillment occurs through their participation in a social process — in the factory or office, in the neighborhood, or in a national activity. If these communities are well-designed, people can make fuller use of their capacities. If not, they will be alienated and frustrated.

• Rights of membership, augmenting and replacing property rights. "A curious thing has happened to private property — it has stopped being very important." It has been superseded, Lodge argues, by the right to survive, to enjoy income, health, and other rights associated with membership in the American community, or corporation, or some other component of the community.

Humanonics —vote decides economics

Intelligence is the leading source of wealth.

Most people tend to think of labor as the prime source of wealth. That was what both Marx and Adam Smith thought. Although capitalism no longer accepts the so-called "labor theory of value," communism still does.

Czech economist Eugene Loebl writes: "Applied science has replaced manual labor in the transformation of natural forces into productive forces. It is the level of thinking applied to the productive process which has become not only the most dynamic economic factor, but the decisive source of wealth as well."

That idea is not entirely new to economics. Economist John W. Kendrick has found that increased education is a major cause of growing productivity in the United States.

BUT LOEBL has developed the thought into an economic theory which, if it should catch on widely, could have considerable impact on the future of capitalism. "Humanonics," as Loebl calls his theory, could also severely damage the appeal of communism.

That would be ironic because Loebl was once a prominent Communist. Indeed, as the dust jacket to his recent book "Humanonics, How We Can Make the Economy Serve Us — Not Destroy Us" points out, the theory was born in a Czech prison.

Loebl, then Czechoslovak first deputy minister of foreign trade, was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1949 by the government for "treason" — he refused to stop trading with the West. During his 11 years in prison, much of the time in solitary, he reappraised both Marxism and capitalism.

Three years after his release from prison, Loebl was rehabilitated and appointed director of the State Bank. But in 1968, when Warsaw Pact forces invaded Czechoslovakia Loebl fled to Austria. Later, he moved to the United States where he teaches at Vassar College.

In any case, Loebl challenges both the "invisible hand" of Adam Smith, the founding theorist of capitalism, and the dialectical determinism of Karl Marx. The economic system is not the result of some dialectical theory about warring classes. Nor is it the creation of some economic law similar to Newtonian physics.

LOEBL CONCEIVES of the economy as a human system where the revolutionary application of natural science and technology (of intelligence) has enormously increased wealth. This system hangs on the creative work of many generations and the contribution of a large number of incredibly complex subsystems.

Business briefs

Big firms unhappy with U.S. education

Big business spends some $2 billion a year on job training and is not happy with how the education system prepares employes for work, according to a study by the Conference Board released Monday. The nation's biggest companies spend most of their training money on in-house education programs which involve an estimated 13 per cent of their employes, the business reasearch group found in a survey. Business executives polled "are closest to consensus in their belief that our education system should give greater emphasis to preparation for work," the board said. "As a group, these executives tend to think poorly of the present performance of the school and colleges in preparing people for work." Businessmen give the lowest marks for job preparation to four-year liberal arts colleges and academic high schools. Educational institutions ranking highest were four-year engineering or science colleges and two-year vocational colleges, the board said. The findings were based on questionnaire results from 610 U.S. firms employing at least 500 workers. The questionnaires were completed in 1975 and the board noted corporate educational activity varies to meet short-term needs that could be different today.

Recreation growth good for firm

The steady growth of the recreational industry is a bonanza for the fiber glass producers, Owens Corning Fiberglas Corp. reports. Donald Miller, manager of consumer-recreation marketing for Owens-Corning, said more than 300 million pounds of fiberglass was used in the American boat industry alone last year and it is expected that this will grow to 500 million pounds by 1981. Fiberglass is increasingly supplementing and even replacing metals and wood and other types of plastics in campers and other recreational vehicles, Miller added and, he said, there now are five million recreational vehicles on the road, up one million since 1971 in spite of the severe impact of the 1973-74 gasoline crisis on the industry. The 1976 sales of recreational vehicles exceeded forecasts by 26 per cent. A 17 per cent sales gain is expected this year.

Coke charging carton deposit

The Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of Tucson has started charging a deposit for the paper cartons used to carry its soft drinks. Plant manager Mel Cooley said the refundable deposit is 10 cents for all cartons except those for the six-pack of 32-ounce bottles, which is 15 cents. The company decided to initiate the deposit to conserve paper and for the "environmental needs of the industry," he said.

Pay checks to increase $2

Paychecks for most Americans are supposed to be slightly larger — by about $2 per week — as a result of new income tax withholding rates going into effect June 1. However, many checks will not immediately reflect the change that stems from the new tax law which President Carter signed in May. That is because many businesses aren't set up to change their withholding rates fast enough to reflect the adjustment in the first checks they send out in June. Up to six weeks or longer may be required in some cases to change computer systems, meaning that some companies may not be able to make the change until late June even though the Internal Revenue Service mailed new withholding schedules the day Carter signed the bill. The lower withholding rates will average about $2 per week below old rates, with the largest decrease — about $4 a week — going to middle-income couples in roughly the $10,000-$12,000 per year range. Some single people — those making $13,750 a year or more — may find an extra dollar taken out of their paychecks since they received a tax increase in the bill.

Wrist calculator sale announced

Hewlitt-Packard Co. announced it will market a calculator which will be worn like a wrist watch. The instrument, the first of its kind, can do much more than many pocket calculators. It tells time and includes an alarm, a 200-year calendar and a memory. All the functions are controlled by a microcomputer that is the equivalent of 38,000 transistors. In addition to conventional computational tasks, the instrument can continuously compute the cost of a telephone call, tell the number of days between two dates and serve as an alarm clock. The company said the instrument, which is a half-inch thick and weighs six ounces, will sell for $650 in a stainless steel case and for $750 in a gold-filled case.

Colliding over auto insurance

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — People who write about personal finance make money mistakes just like everyone else. And it's embarrassing. When it happens to me, the person on the other side will likely give me a smug smile ("Ha, and you thought you were so smart!") while I hunker down and steam.

All of which is a prelude to telling you about my latest financial crime, in which there may or may not be a lesson.

Last year, following my own benign advice, my husband and I canceled the collision insurance on our car. We did it to save money. The car, although four years old, still was valuable. But in our house, as in yours, the budget is tighter than it used to be. Something had to go.

WE AXED THE collision insurance because, in my husband's 30 years of driving and my 20, neither of us has ever had an accident. We're so safety minded we even approve of cars that buzz nastily until the seat belt is fastened.

So no one was more surprised than I when, two weeks after canceling the collision coverage, we were hit in Delaware, at dusk, by a woman driving without her lights. No one was hurt and her car was barely dented. But ours looked as if it had gone to the mat with a steamroller.

The repair bill was $2,000, and the good lady was uninsured.

From here, the story resolves into a series of morality plays.

Scene one — Goody two shoes vs the lawbreaker: in 22 states, all drivers are supposed to have insurance, Delaware among them. But all too often offenders are not prosecuted. And indeed, the police never bothered to press charges against the uninsured driver who hit us. In many states, the fine is so small that even if caught, it's cheaper for an uninsured driver to pay the fine than buy the coverage.

Rising auto rates, combined with lax enforcement of compulsory insurance laws, are putting more and more uninsured drivers on the road — especially young people and poor drivers, who have more accidents.

Scene two — I'll see you in court: if there's no insurance company to settle with, you can always sue the driver and get a money judgment against him. But it so often happens that people with no insurance also have no assets and small earnings. So you can't collect.

THE CASE ALSO MAY be contested, because there were no witnesses (as in this instance, when it was her word against ours that she had no lights).

By and large, there's no point canceling collision coverage until the book value of the car gets within nodding distance of the insurance cost. (Insurers won't pay any more than book value for repairs, no matter how big the bill.) Because casualty losses are tax deductible after the first $100, families in higher brackets might be willing to sustain a larger loss.

A better approach is to raise the deductible, perhaps to $500 or more. You'll cut the insurance cost, but still be protected against a big loss.

NSSEO offers program for problem kids

Help for children with behavior disorders will be coming to them at an earlier age than ever through a new program offered by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization.

NSSEO, a special education cooperative of 10 area school districts, will begin a preschool program next fall for children to 3-5-years-old with severe behavior problems.

The program, open to a maximum of 10 students, will be located at Gregory School, 400 E. Gregory St., Mount Prospect. Gregory now houses a special education and therapy program for elementary through junior high school age children.

SOME OF THE children who are eligible for the preschool program now attend Kirk Center in Palatine, which primarily serves mentally handicapped students.

Edward McDonald, NSSEO executive director, said it is not "ideal" to mix the behaviorally disordered children with the others at Kirk because the children with behavior problems "tend to be acting out, aggressive students and (they) take advantage of the more severely intellectually limited, passive students."

Gregory also would be a better setting for the preschoolers because the school can provide family therapy through psychologists and social workers now associated with the school, McDonald said.

Through screening programs in each local school district, preschoolers who previously were not served in special education classes may be picked out for the Gregory program.

"We will be able to get to them faster and address their specific emotional problems" rather than send them through a general preschool program, McDonald said.

McDonald said the cost of the Gregory program will not increase NSSEO's budget because it will involve a reallocation of current funds.

Trap springs on unwary

Jim: "Paul Lukacs and Jeff Rubens have produced a book called 'Test Your Play as Declarer' which gives 89 problem hands. Some are extremely complicated, but most show a fairly simple common sense approach to the problem."

Oswald: "Their first hand is from rubber bridge. West leads the king of spades against your three-notrump contract which looks like a cinch. There appear to be six club tricks and the other three aces."

Jim: "That is too simple. These writers must have set a trap for you. Can you find the trap?"

Oswald: "The trap wasn't really set for us, but it is there for the unsuspecting reader. Suppose clubs break 3-0. Then when declarer plays clubs he will have to win the third in dummy and the eight or nine will block the suit."

Jim: "South can guard against this by ducking the first spade and the second spade. Then he will be able to chuck a club on the ace of spades. Or if West shifts South can duck a spade on his own and still get ready for that discard."

Ask Andy

Hummingbirds: some migrate, some don't

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Crissy Hunter, 11, of Superior, Wis., for her question:

DO HUMMINGBIRDS MIGRATE?

Bird experts believe the hummingbird originated in northern South America. It now can be found throughout South America, Central America, Mexico, in some of the eastern and western parts of the United States and in southern Canada. The birds beat their wings so fast in flight they produce the humming sound responsible for their name.

There are 319 species of hummingbirds in the Western Hemisphere. Some migrate each year from South America to North America and back again while other members of the family are nonmigratory.

Those who migrate stow up a thick layer of fat under the skin before they head for new parts. The ruby-throated hummingbird, for example, will take on a fuel load before its flights that is almost 50 per cent of its body weight.

Nonmigratory hummers do not build up fat reserves. It happens only to those who migrate and is caused by an endocrine stimulus triggered by the length of daylight.

Twice each year the ruby-throat flies between its home in the tropics and the eastern part of North America, at times going nonstop 500 miles across the Gulf of Mexico.

Scientists report and prove by metabolic tests that the ruby-throat cannot possibly store enough fuel for such a long flight. But the birds have never read the report so they continue to make the flights.

The ratio between a hummingbird's wing surface and the weight of its entire body is about the same as the ratio in other birds that use flapping flight.

Soaring birds have more wing surface per unit of body weight. With the hummer, however, its flying muscles are much larger in proportion to its size and weight than any other bird. The muscles are attached to a keel on the breastbone that also is proportionately deeper and sturdier than those found on all others.

The hummingbird's power lets the wings beat 55 times per second in hovering flight. No humming sound is heard at this speed. In level flight the speed increases to 75 beats per second and the hum can be heard. During courtship, the male goes through a series of spectacular aerial gymnastics and the vibration of the wings goes as high as 200 beats per second.

A hummingbird's takeoff takes only seven-hundreths of a second. Its tiny feet are used only for perching. It can't take a walk or climb along a tree branch. If it wants to move to the right one inch, it has to fly that distance.

Andy sends a denoyer-Geppert World Globe to Kim Coleman, 15, of Tulsa, Okla., for her question:

HOW DO HANGNAILS OCCUR?

Each of your fingernails has an opaque fold of skin at its base that is called the cuticle. A hangnail, which is a common problem for many people, occurs when the cuticle becomes dry and is torn. A ragged and often triangular flap of skin appears and it can act as a lever to tear into the deeper living layers of skin if allowed to remain.

Hangnails can be removed at the base, using a clean pair of sharp scissors. Care must be taken so that the area doesn't become inflamed.

Fingernails should receive special care. Soak the nails to soften the cuticle and then press it back gently with the fingertip of the opposite hand. Lubricating cream also can be used to keep the cuticle soft.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to boys and girls 7 to 17.

Sox stumble; battle Twins

by BOB GALLAS

Like the karate expert cornered in a dark alley, the White Sox aren't necessarily intimidated by big guns.

The Sox, despite six Yankee home runs, hung in their again Sunday, even to the point of getting a run off relief ace Sparky Lyle, before dropping an 8-6 verdict to New York.

Steve Stone, who hadn't given up more than three runs in 10 starts this season, was bombed early by the Yankees, who led 6-2 on four home runs before Stone left in the third. The righthander, who had given up but six homers in 78 innings going in, admitted he didn't have much.

"I just didn't have a thing. I was throwing rotten," he said afterwards. Manager Bob Lemon was quick to point out Stone's past performances.

"I think Stoney's entitled to one of these games in 11 starts."

THE LOSS MARKED the third time in a little more than a week that the Sox have put up six runs only to lose to the Yankees so it was little surprise that talk turned to pitching — and the upcoming series at Minnesota today and tomorrow.

Bart Johnson, who'd earned his way back into the starting rotation with some good relief work, is apparently back in the bullpen again after getting bombed in Saturday's loss to New York. Lemon said Chris Knapp may be returned to the rotation in Texas Wednesday or Thursday.

"I'm going to think about it awhile. I don't have to make a decision for a few days. It will probably be Knapp (Thursday in Texas) unless we make some changes," said Lemon, alluding to a possible trade or the recalling of a minor league pitcher.

Two things are for sure. It will be Ken Brett and Francisco Barrios who will take to the hill tonight and tomorrow night as the second place Sox meet the division-leading Twins for the first time this season. The Twins also lost yesterday, and still lead the Sox by two games.

Minnesota will counter Brett (6-3) by throwing lefty and former Cub Geoff Zahn, who got off to a 5-0 start for the Twins and is currently 6-3. Another lefty will face Barrios (5-3) on Tuesday, Jeff Holly, a onetime Sox product.

LEMON INDICATED he'll probably send his right handed platoon into action which means Wayne Nordhagen, who's been wielding a hot bat lately, will replace Ralph Garr in left field and Lamar Johnson will replace Oscar Gamble as the designated hitter.

One encouraging note in Sunday's game was the 6 1/3 inning relief job by Dave Hamilton, one of the mainstays of the bullpen last year who's been struggling along this season but turned in two good outings in a row. Hamilton's only mistakes turned out to be fatal. He served up home run balls to two of the weakest hitters in the Yankee lineup and two runs was the final margin.

George Zeber, a second baseman who'd been in only four games for New York this year, hit a solo clout in the fourth, his first major league homer. Then, after the Sox had closed to within a run at 7-6, Hamilton served up a gopher ball to shortstop Bucky Dent in the ninth. It was only Dent's second homer of the year.

It was the longest stint of the year for the lefthander, who alowed only two hits, over the final five innings.

Arlington Park opens

Improvement and concern

Arlington Park celebrates the opening of its 50th anniversary season today and everything but the King Midas touch has been added to make it a golden tribute.

The horsemen have received a slick, new racing surface, the public a flashy Hall of Fame room on the third floor grandstand.

But despite the main track facelift, the enshrinement of equine heroes, the prestigious 103 prime summer race days, and an extensive advertising campaign, Arlingon Park will be battling for its very life with the eastern-based tracks for quality horses and the messenger betting services for attendance and handle.

THE LUXURY of five plants — Belmont, Monmouth, Ktystone, Suffolk Downs and Delaware Park — all operating at the same time, gives the eastern owner and trainer five major outlets to campaign his horse in relative close proximity. That convenience is absent in the Midwest.

The messenger services and their erosion into the attendance and handle figures at other Chicago tracks prompted one official to state frankly that Arlington Park cannot afford to operate at such a severe deficit.

"If we operate at a 20 per cent attendance deficit, there will be a padlock on this place by the end of the year," he said.

On a rosier side, though, are the improvements.

Jim Cook

Assistant sports editor

JOE MORROW, who installed Arlington's original racing strip in 1927, was lured out of retirement to reconstruct the present main track. The costly overhaul was performed by transporting portions of the track from Washington Park on the south side which was gutted by fire during the winter.

"It's like the dust bowl today," Richard Hazelton, prennially one of the leading trainers on the grounds said, shielding his eyes from an approaching cloud of sand while astride a saddle pony observing a morning workout.

"I know there had been some complaints about it (the track) and it seems to be more uniform, but I haven't been on the backside yet," he said, snapping a stopwatch in harmony with a flying thoroughbred at the wire.

Hazelton, with 50 head stabled in Barn 1A, again figures to challenge for the leading trainer title by saddling the most winners.

NOT ABOUT to concede the honor, though, are veterans Jack Van Berg who won last year's national championship, Jack Weipert who trains multiple-stakes winner Improvisor and W. E. "Smiley" Adams who saddles Triple Crown entry Run Dusty Run.

Others highly regarded are Bob Holthus, Paul Adwell, J. R. Smith, Harry Trotsek, Joe Bollero, Larry Robideaux and Christine Viera who campaigned very successfully in Florida during the winter racing season.

A record 3,500 stall applications were received for the 103-day meeting, almost double Arlington's 35-barn, 1,945 horse capacity.

The Hall of Fame, is a kingsized photo album of every great horse, trainer, stable and jockey who graced Arlington Park over the past 50 years in addition to such memorabilia as jockey silks and a near full-sized replica of Secretariat.

SCHEDULED FOR induction into the Hall of Fame today are horses Round Table, Nashua, Secretariat, Native Dancer, Dr. Fager, Buckpasser, Equipoise, Tom Rolfe, Citation, Armed, Twilight Tear, Coaltown, T.V. Lark and Candy Spots.

Trainers include Ben and Jimmy Jones, William (Hal) Bishop, Arnold Winick and Harry Trotsek while the honored stables are Calumet Farm, William (Hal) Bishop Stable, Inc. and Hasty House Farm.

Post time for the first race is 2 p.m. Admission prices remain the same as last year — $1.85 for grandstand and $2.85 for clubhouse. Parking is $1.

Race handicapping begins

Racing fans will appreciate a new feature in The Herald sports — a daily handicapping of the races at Arlington Park.

Written by Schaumburg resident Ray Hallett, the graded selections will offer insight for each horse by a man who has worked behind the scenes at Arlington Park for the past three years.

"For those who work at the track, handicapping is necessary for self defense," Hallett says. "You learn to do it reasonably well or you work for nothing."

Hallett's first selections appear today on page 3.

Cubs' lead cut; Dodgers in town

PITTSBURGH — You could say the Cubs' Sunday afternoon at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh was all wet — in many ways.

In a game that featured three rain delays, the Pirates defeated the Cubs, 5-4, before 51,580 fans and closed once again to within one-half game of Chicago in the National League East.

The Cubs now come home for a big week against the Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants. The powerful Dodgers move into Wrigley Field today, Tuesday and Wednesday and the Giants follow, starting Thursday.

THE FIRST rain delay here Sunday made the game start 32 minutes late. Rain delay No. 2 came in the first inning with Ivan DeJesus on second and Cub teammate Larry Biittner batting following a strikeout by Greg Gross.

After a two hour and 36-minute deluge, Biittner struck out. Cleanup hitter Bobby Murcer coaxed a walk from Pirates' rookie pitcher O'Dell Jones, but Jerry Morales fanned.

Chicago produced its only lead one inning later. Then, George Mitterwald's sacrifice fly scored Manny Trillo who had doubled and advanced to third on Dave Rosello's ground out to second base.

Pittsburgh fought back in its half of the second inning.

WITH TWO OUTS and the bases loaded, Frank Taveras' single scored Willie Stargell. Big Willie had started the inning with a double. He would have scored on Rennie Stennett's double, but a sore leg and shinbone held him up at third base. Cub pitcher Bill Bonham's walk to Duffy Dyer then loaded the bases.

Pittsburgh took the lead in the third inning when Bill Robinson hit his fourth home run. The shot over the leftfield wall came with Dave Parker

Walton directs Portland to crown

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Bill Walton's favorite basketball fantasy has been to pass off to a teammate who made the shot that won the NBA championship.

It didn't quite come out that way as the Portland Trail Blazers nipped Philadelphia 109-107 Sunday but Walton did get his hand on the ball, tipping it out a missed George McGinnis shot to teammate Johnny Davis who streaked down the floor, running out the final four seconds on the clock which spelled championship for Portland.

Walton was named the most valuable player of the championship series although Julius Erving of the 76ers put on a magnificent scoring display in the playoffs. But it was Walton's direction of the team-oriented Blazers that spelled the difference in the title matchup.

WALTON HAD 20 points, 23 rebounds, 7 assists and 8 blocked shots in Game 6 as the Blazers took their fourth straight from the 76ers to win 4 games to 2.

Bob Gross, most unheralded small forward in the NBA, was a hero in Game 5 and was a major favor in the championship game along with Walton, Lionel Hollins, Davis and Maurice Lucas.

Gross scored 24 points, high for the Blazers.

Portland Coach Jack Ramsay said upon receiving the NBA championship trophy from NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien, "I want all my players in here — everybody in this organization deserves a piece of this so all get your hands on it. This is the finest team I have ever coached ... the finest people I have ever coached ... the finest persons I've ever coached. My goal since I started coaching is to win an NBA championship and it's here.

A RECORD, standing-room only crowd of 12,951 went wild as their rags-to-riches team, after only seven years in pro basketball, won the sport's most coveted prize.

Philadelphia made a last gasp charge to pull it out in the dying seconds and was trailing by two points, but Gross blocked a Lloyd Free shot with five seconds left, then Walton tipped a McGinnis miss to Davis who raced down the floor as time ran out.

It was the fourth straight win by Portland over Philadelphia and the first time since 1969, when the Boston Celtics beat the Los Angeles Lakers, that a team losing the first two games of the championship series came back to win.

Portland again used an explosive period, a tactic that became its offensive trademark in games 3 through 6, scoring 40 points in the second quarter with Walton, Davis, Gross and Hollis the big gunners which put Portland up 67-55 at halftime.

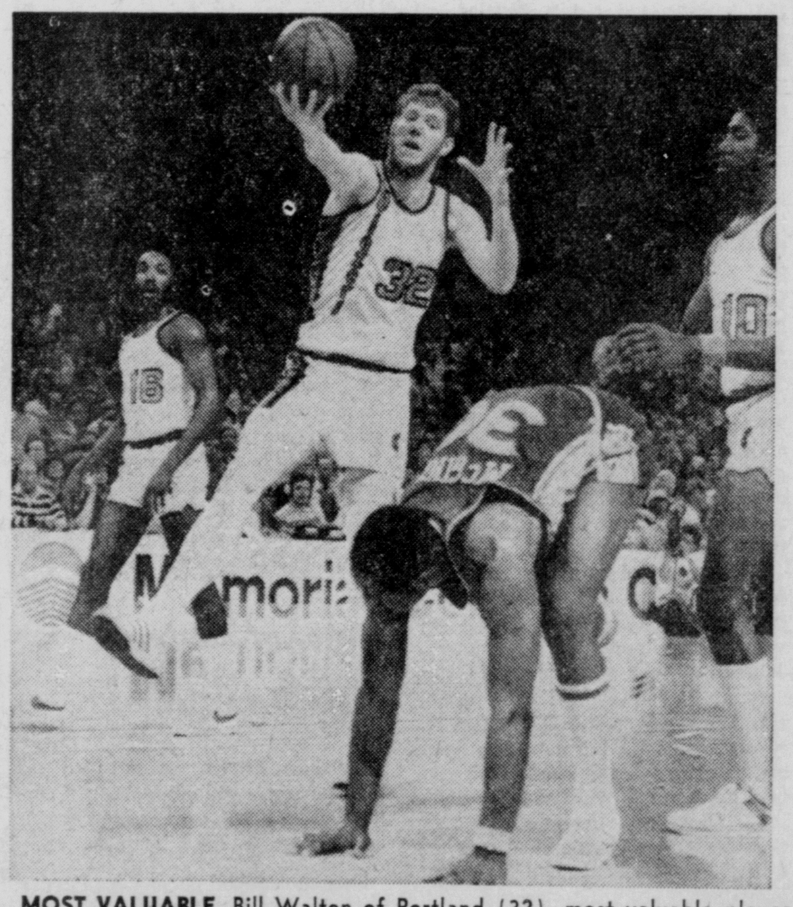
THAT WAS A GAP Philadelphia never quite closed, although the 76ers made a run at it in the fourth period, pulling to within five points at 91-86 early in the quarter, then getting to within two at the 18 second mark. But as in the three previous losses to Portland, Philadelphia could not catch up.

Julius Erving put on a brilliant 40 point performance and McGinnis came out of his long slump to score 27, but they couldn't do it.

While Gross had 24 to lead Portland, Walton and Lionel Hollis had 20, Maurice Lucas 15 and Johnny Davis 13 as scoring was distributed in the team oriented attack.

PHILADELPHIA made it a tough ballgame in the first period, which ended at 27-27. McGinnis got the first six points for the 76ers, who played a team game for the first time since Game 2, and the lead changed hands seven times and the game was tied seven times in the opening period.

It was nip and tuck early into the second period with the score tied 40-40 on McGinnis' basket with little over seven minutes left. That's when the explosion began with the Blazers outscoring Philadelphia 17-2 in the next five minutes and it was Walton, Hollins and Davis on the rampage.



MOST VALUABLE. Bill Walton of Portland (32), most valuable player in the NBA playoff series, leaps forward to snag rebound as Philadelphia's George McGinnis slips to floor Sunday afternoon. Watching are Blazers' Johnny Davis, left, and Corky Calhoun. Portland won the NBA title, 109-107.

NEWCOMER. Shortstop Mike Jennings fires the ball to first in season opener for Arlington's American Legion team. Coach Lloyd Meyer is rebuilding his infield, and he was pleased with the quickness of his new shortstop as Arlington won twice Sunday, 4-0 and 11-5.

It didn't take long for Kevin McBride to prove that last year was no fluke.

Coach Lloyd Meyer tabbed McBride as his starting pitcher for the season opener, and he responded by throwing a one-hitter at Cedar Rapids West as the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team won 4-0 Sunday.

Arlington, coming off a second-place finish in the national tournament last season, also won its second game of the long afternoon, this time beating Cedar Rapids East, 11-5.

IN THE OPENER, McBride gave up his only hit in the first inning when Carles Stumpff lined a pitch into left field with two outs.

The only other West runners were Ed Uthoff, who walked in the second, and Dave Wise, who reached on an error in the sixth. Wise eventually made it to third on another error, but McBride got the next batter to ground out.

McBride gave himself the only run that was needed when he tripled in the third and came home after West's third baseman committed an error on the same play.

Arlington added two runs in the fourth on two singles, two walks and a hit batsman. Then Mike Mayerck completed the scoring with a solo home run over the left field fence in the sixth.

MEYER WAS pleased with McBride's pitching, even though he said that it has been better in the past. McBride compiled a 14-1 record last year after winning just one game in his high school career.

The doubleheader, which was moved to Prospect High School and delayed an hour because of wet grounds, proceeded with Dennis Drolet as Arlington's starter in game two.

Before one inning was over, Drolet had all the runs he needed to pick up the victory. Arlington went through 12 batters in the first, collecting seven runs on seven hits.

Catcher John Isola provided the biggest punch with a three-run homer that carried well over the left field fence. It scored Paul Lundstedt and Dan Frase.

DROLET'S SINGLE up the middle later scored Mike Jennings from third to complete the seven-run barrage. Jennings had reached on a single and a two-base error when the ball got past the right fielder.

Cedar Rapids East cut into the gap in the next inning when catcher Jeff Fleckenstein hit a home run in the same spot where Isola's cleared the fence. Two runners scored ahead of Fleckenstein.

Arlington added three runs in the second with Drolet again capping the burst with an RBI single to elft. The other big hit in the inning was a double by Lundstedt that scored John Vukovich, who had walked.

The final Arlington run of the day came in the fifth when Vukovich scored on Frase's single. A few minutes later, Frase injured his right ankle while rounding second.

HE HAD TO leave the game, but the intensity of the mishap was not known.

Meyer is counting on Frase to play second this season, which is a period of rebuilding for his infield. The coach was pleased with the defense displayed Sunday, especially that of John Mertins at third.

Mertins, known mostly for his pitching, was involved in seven putouts, including a lineout in the first game. Doug Harth also played some third base, but Meyer said that both will be needed as pitchers this season.

"The infield has a long way to go," Meyer said, "but the potential to be a good infield is there."

Todd Walker and newcomer Jim McDonald each worked two innings in relief of Drolet. Both allowed one run.

Yankees top Sox again

gie Jackson and Graig Nettles all clouted homers in the first three innings. Jackson's home run was a massive shot to the right-center field upper deck that traveled about 425 feet.

THE YANKEES LED 6-3 after three innings. One of the three Sox runs came on Oscar Gamble's 10th home run of the year, which came in the third. The run batted in was Gamble's 20th. Now all Sox starters have at least 20 runs batted in with Richie Zisk leading at 39.

The Sox knocked out Yankee starter Gil Patterson in the second inning, after scoring two runs. Gamble's homer and single runs in the fifth and sixth off Dick Tidrow, who worked four innings before Lyle and his 0.79 earned run average came on to work the final three innings.

The Sox nicked Lyle for a run in the seventh but the damage could have been much greater. Zisk greeted Lyle with a double and pinch hitter Lamar Johnson stroked a single to put runners at first and third with nobody out. Zisk was caught in a rundown between home and third on Jim Spencer's fielder's choice while both runners moved to second and third. Johnson scored on a fielder's choice by Chet Lemon but Spencer was later out trying for third on a ball hit to the shortstop.

SOX SHORTS: Sunday's crowd of 23,688 brought the total of fans who saw the three-game series with the Yankees to 89,873. The Yankees are a top draw on the road, where they average almost 26,000 fans a game. The Sox have now drawn over 400,000 in 22 home dates this season, about 110 fans ahead of last year.

Tonight's game at Minnesota will be telecast locally by WLS-TV, Channel 7, as the backup game to the national network game which will feature (who else) the Yankees at Texas. The next Sox home game will be Friday night, June 17 against Oakland.

Down on the farm, Kevin Bell had five runs batted in and hit his 11th and 12th home runs of the season to pace a 13-1 Iowa win over Wichita Saturday. Jack Kucek fanned 14 and walked only one in a 6-hit distance performance for the Oaks. Catcher Jim Essian has signed a one-year contract with the Sox for an estimated $60,000. That leaves four unsigned players, Richie Zisk, Jorge Orta, Ken Brett and Ralph Garr.

Chicago Storm visit Randhurst

Chicago's newest pro ball club, the Chicago Storm softball team, will visit Randhurst Shopping Center from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, June 11.

Former baseball player Milt Pappas, who manages the Storm, will head the delegation of players who will pass out posters and sign authographs for fans. Pappas also will conduct a mini-clinic for persons interested in softball.

White Sox await No. 1 draft pick

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball's annual summer free agent draft, which has produced numerous stars for the major leagues since its inception in 1965, will be held Tuesday and Wednesday with the White Sox getting the first choice in the regular phase and the Minnesota Twins selecting first in the secondary phase.

For the third year in a row, the draft of the country's top high school and colllege prospects will be held via a conference call between the baseball commissioner's office in New York City and each club's home office.

The regular phase of the selections, primarily for first-time draftees, will begin at 11 p.m. Tuesday, while the secondary phase, made up of previously drafted but unsigned players, will start at the same time on the second day. See order of draft in Scoreboard.

WHEN THE much shorter secondary phase is completed, the regular phase will continue.

The order of selection for the regular phase is based on the reverse order of finish in last year's regular season standings. Under a rotating system, American League clubs will draft ahead of National League teams this year.

In the secondary phase, the position of selection is determined by a drawing made by the league presidents.

Among the current stars who were taken in the summer free agent draft are Reggie Jackson, Rick Monday and Jeff Burroughs. Two players taken in last year's draft, pitcher Floyd Bannister of Houston and pitcher Bob Owchinko of San Diego, are currently in the majors.

Cubs fall in Pittsburgh on base via a walk and gave the Pirates a 3-1 lead.

The Cubs narrowed the gap to 3-2 in the top of the fifth inning. With two outs, Greg Gross' single scored George Mitterwald. Mitterwald had singled and advanced to second on DeJesus ground out to third base.

PITTSBURGH INCREASED its lead to 5-2 in the bottom of the fifth. Stargell's double just eluded the outstretched reach of centerfielder Morales and brought home Dave Parker and Al Oliver.

In the top of the sixth, the Cubs threatened as Trillo and Jones drew consecutive walks following two outs. However, Kent Tekulve replaced Jones and got Mitterwald on a fly ball for the third out.

A third rain delay held up the game for 40 minutes before the Pirates could start their half of the sixth inning. Following the delay, Cub manager Herman Franks instituted a new battery of Paul Reuschel pitching and Steve Swisher catching.

REUSCHEL BLANKED Pittsburgh in the sixth and seventh while the Cubs mounted an eighth inning rally that knocked out Tekulve. Larry Biittner singled, advanced to second on Bobby Murcer's walk, and then scored on Jerry Morales' single.

Ex-White Sox Rich Gossage then replaced Tekulve. He gave up a sacrifice fly to Manny Trillo that scored Murcer.

Morales advanced to second when first baseman Stargell couuld not handle Gossage's pickoff throw. However, Manny died at second, because Bill Buckner, pinch hitting for Rosello, flew out to left field and Joe Wallis, pinch hitting for Paul Reuschel, struck out.

The Cubs victory hope died in the ninth win. Swisher struck out, DeJesus grounded out, and Gross was called out on a check swing.

West Germans win in soccer test

Wolfgang Frank fired home a penalty shot with 13 minutes to go, breaking open a close contest and sending the West German National soccer team to a 4-1 victory over an American All-Stars at Soldier Field Sunday.

The West Germans dominated action throughout the afternoon and built up a 2-0 halftime lead on goals by Manfred Burgsmueller and Peter Geyer.

Sixteen minutes into the second half, however, Mike Flater of the Minnesota Kicks brought the 10,000 spectators to their feet by taking a pass from Al Trost (St. Louis Stars) and punched in a 10-yarder.

Colin Fowles, a Ft. Lauderdale Strikers representative who turned in an outstanding second half performance for the Americans, set up the goal by feeding from the side.

After Franks' goal the Germans added a 20-yarder by Rudiger Wenzel to win going away.

Two Sting players, Alex Skotarek and Steve Ralbovsky, flew in from Las Vegas in time to participate in the game but the entire U.S. effort was hampered by a lack of practice.

The Sting lost 3-0 in Las Vegas in North American Soccer League play.

Red Sox aid White Sox; Mets top Phillies twice

Major league baseball

The Red Sox did the White Sox a favor Sunday when they socked it to Minnesota, 5-1, to keep the Twins just two games ahead of the ChiSox who open a series in Minnesota tonight.

Butch Hobson hit a pair of RBI singles and Carl Yastremski belted a two-run homer to lead Boston over the Twins. Bill Campbell, an ex-Twin, saved the game for the Red Sox with four innings of two-hit relief.

In other American League action Sunday, Kansas City shaded Baltimore 4-3, Toronto blasted Oakland 7-3 and Seattle crushed Cleveland 6-1.

IN THE NATIONAL League, New York swept Philadelphia 6-5 and 3-2, Montreal downed St. Louis 7-5, Los Angeles defeated San Diego 4-2, Cincinnati overpowered Houston 14-4 and San Francisco out-slugged Atlanta 10-9.

Pete LaCock hit his first American League homer, a two-run shot off Jim Palmer, to provide the Royals with a victory over the Orioles. LaCock, acquired from the Chicago Cubs during the off-season, sent Palmer down to his fifth loss in 12 decisions with a 335-foot blast after Al Cowens had reached base in an error by second baseman Rich Dauer.

Otto Velez hit a pair of home runs and Doug Ault and John Scott also homered to help rookie Jerry Garvin to his seventh victory and lead the Blue Jays to a triumph over Vida Blue and the A's. In addition to his ninth and 10th homers, Velez also had a single and a sacrifice fly to tag Blue with his seventh loss in 10 decisions.

Rookie Ruppert Jones hit his 10th home run along with a pair of singles to drive in three runs and spark a Mariner victory over the Indians. Seattle winner John Montague, 5-3, pitched his first complete game in the major leagues.

In night action, Milwaukee was at Texas and Detroit was at California.

DAVE KINGMAN'S three-run homer in the fourth inning of the nightcap led the New York Mets to a 3-2 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies and completed a sweep of their doubleheader.

John Milner scored on a wild pitch by reliever Tom Underwood with one out in the 10th inning to give the Mets a 6-5 victory in the opener. The Mets have now won six of seven games since Joe Torre took over as manager last Tuesday.

SAM MAJIAS snapped a 5-5 tie with his first major league home run — the fourth solo shot of the game for Montreal — powering the Expos to a 7-5 victory over St. Louis and a sweep of the three-game series with the cardinals.

Mejias' home run over the left-field wall came against Cardinals' losing reliever Clay Carroll, to make the score 6-5. Following Mejias' home run, Dave Cash singled, advanced to second on Chris Speier's sacrifice and scored an insurance run on Elis Valentine's double.

Davey Lopes hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning and Doug Rau notched his sixth victory in seven decisions when the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the San Diego Padres 4-2.

JOHNNY BENCH drove in five runs with a pair of homers and Joe Morgan added a three-run blast to power the Cincinnati Reds to a 14-4 rout of the Houston Astros.

Thomas and Bill Madlock each drove in a pair of early runs to help San Francisco build a seven-run cushion which offset a late home run barrage by Atlanta and enabled the Giants to defeat the Braves 10-9.

NO HANDS. Gunner Nilsson raises both arms in jubilation as he takes the checkered flag for his first Formula One win at Zolder, Belgium, Sunday. His average speed was 155.527 miles per hour.

Weiskopf collects Kemper Open title

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Veteran Tom Weiskopf left three young, winless challengers behind Sunday midway through the final round of the $250,000 Kemper Open to win a two-stroke victory with an 11-under-par 277. Weiskopf, whose last victory was the 1975 Canadian Open, was locked in a battle with Bill Rogers and George Burns at 11 under par after nine holes on the 7,160-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course. But Weiskopf, who won the Kemper in 1971 and 1973 to become the only two-time champ, birdied the 10th hole to move 12 strokes below par and claim a one-stroke lead. He bogeyed the 17th hole to drop 11 under par, but had a three-stroke cushion over Rogers and Burns going into the hole.

Doug Tewell, another youngster seeking his first win in three PGA seasons, was another stroke back at the turn. He finished eight strokes under par with a birdie on the final hole to tie Lou Graham for fourth place. Rogers bogeyed the 11th and 14th holes to finish nine under par, but made his best showing since his fourth place finish in the Crosby Open. Burns, a husky former football player at Maryland, also stood nine under in a tie with Rogers for second place at 279. He said he decided last week to "not let this game get me churned up inside," and credited his improved play to a relaxed attitude.

Darnell takes gruelling Texas 500

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — Master car builder Bay Darnell, driving a powerful Dodge 426 hemi, outlasted a field of 33 drivers fighting searing heat to win the Texas 500 stock car race at Texas World Speedway Sunday. Paul Feldner of Richfield, Wis., and Gordon Blankenship of Keokuk, Ind., both driving similar cars, finished second and third respectively.

Darnell, 46, one of the veteran racers, took the lead on the 148th lap in the 500-mile classic and had cinched his dominance by the 300-mile mark, holding off first Sal Tovella and then Feldner and Blankenship. By the end of the 250-lap endurance contest — fought on the two-mile high-banked oval where track temperatures reportedly reach 140 degrees — only 11 cars remained. Average track speed was 135 miles per hour.

Vilas nets first major victory

PARIS — Argentinian ace Guillermo Vilas wiped out Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 6-0, 6-3, 6-0, in Sunday's final of the French Open tennis championship to win his first major tournament title. The 24-year-old left-hander from Mar del Plata allowed Gottfried, 25, to hold his service only three times throughout the match, which was marred by light rainfall in the first and third sets.

Vilas clinched the 2½ hour match, watched by a capacity 13,000 crowd at the red clay center court of the Roland Garros stadium, by breaking service when Gottfried put a full volley outside the left sideline. Vilas earned $38,000 for his straight set victory. Gottfried, playing in his first major tournament final, received $19,000.

Carner cruises to easy LPGA win

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. — JoAnne Carner struggled to a two-over-par 74 but still scored an easy, frontrunning, 5-stroke victory Sunday in the LPGA's $100,000 Talk Tournament. Carner, two-time U.S. Women's Open champion, made only two birdies — the second one after shanking a pitch shot off a spectator's face on the 18th hole — in matching the highest final-round score by a winner on the LPGA tour in a year.

The first birdie came at the 140-yard 13th hole, right after Carner's lead, which was six strokes at the start of the day, had been trimmed to three — simply because she had made four bogeys in the first 12 holes. After that, Carner routinely parred her way to number 18, where she generated the only excitement of the breezy, overcast day.

Why not last year?

Cubs, your timing is bad

Jim Murray

It is the ultimate in athletic irony that his Chicago Cubs should be performing so well now that Phil Wrigley is not around to see them. In death as in life, the Cubs continue to frustrate him. This is not a team, it's a satire.

I don't know whether they're under a win-ine-for-the-old-Gipper mentality, but you wonder why they couldn't have done it while the old P.K. was around to enjoy it. The team is viewing the league from the top, an unusual vantage point for the Cubs. The last time they occupied this dizzying eminence for Mr. Wrigley, in August 1969, they promptly went into their comedy act. They went from 9½ games ahead of the New York Mets to 8½ behind. As pratfalls go, that was major league.

Philip Knight Wrigley was a complex, conscience-stricken man who was, to say the least, unusual for baseball. He loved the Cubs. But they were like a pet parrot who keeps saying the wrong things in front of company, or a supposedly trained elephant who keeps forgetting the tricks and falls off the ball or really breaks the circus lady's ribs.

WRIGLEY TRIED everything to bring his Cubs up to parity. But they won three (count 'em) pennants in the 45 years he ran them. They hadn't won many more for his Dad before him. Even when they won, they usually managed in the World Series to get pie all over their faces. Twice they not snuffed out in four straight.

Wrigley was a patsy for the league. Branch Rickey once unloaded an overage crippled Dizzy Dean on him for more than $100,000 in the days (1938) when it was like $100 million, and Ol' Diz practically had to put a stamp on his fastball to get it to the plate.

In 1958, when the Dodgers wanted to move to Los Angeles, Phil Wrigley, who owned the territory, graciously sold it to Walter O'Malley. O'Malley gave him the Ft. Worth (known in baseball as "Ft. Worthless") franchise for the Los Angeles franchise, and $2 million for Wrigley Field, which O'Malley promptly traded for 400 acres of downtown real estate where his team now sits paying off like a functioning gold mine. It was the most one-sided trade-off since the Russians sold Alaska. But if Wrigley ever even whimpered, nobody heard him.

WRIGLEY, OF course, was the guy who put chewing gum on the bottom of every theater seat in America — to say nothing of the top of every subway platform — but this shy, reclusive man was the least likely millionaire in the history of the breed. Still, his company sold $200 million worth of chewing gum all over the world every year. Since the product is not high on the essentials list, he must have been a genius at advertising. But a more hermit-like tycoon never existed.

He tried everything with the Cubbies. He hired consulting psychology teams — but the Cubs lied to them. He tried a computer — but baseball is a game played by nine rugged individualists and they, to say the least, defied programming, I mean, try putting Reggie Jackson on a print-out.

When the team lost 103 games in 1962, Wrigley brought in a football athletic director from Air Force Academy. Someone suggested that, if the team needed a pilot, why didn't they go for the Red Baron? Or Steve Canyon?

THE FLY-BOY cut the losses some, but not much, and within three years the Cubs were back to losing 103 games again — effortlessly. They were incorrigible. Tell 'em to fetch a ball, and they'd come back with a skunk.

Wrigley wouldn't put lights in Wrigley Field because it was a residential neighborhood. "How'd you like to have 30,000 people screaming their heads off at 11 o'clock at night in your neighborhood?" Wrigley would ask. Most moguls would not only put the lights in but try to figure a way to make the neighbors pay for them — but that's the way Wrigley was. He thought advertising on his outfield fences was an eyesore, though profitable; so he planted ivy on them. When batters used to complain about the glare of white shirts in the background at center field, Wrigley cheerfully took out thousands of seats and painted the backdrop green. Wrigley didn't want to win a game or a pennant at the expense of a fractured skull.

He drew gasps of outrage when he told Congress 25 years ago that the baseball draft law was monopolistic, and in violation of antitrust. And no Wrigley employe went off the payroll even in the pit of the Great Depression.

THE CUBS operated at a deficit, financial and atheletic, every year, but this strange, withdrawn man just shrugged. When the high-dollar roll came in baseball this year, Wrigley just dealt off his top stars rather than bicker with them and everyone predicted the Cubs might fall all the way down to the Three Eye League or at least right through the bottom of the National League.

Wrigley died this year before he could see his team of trade throw-ins and "Whozats?" leading the league. If they win the pennant, they should get a good swift collective kick in the sliding pads. And someone should say "Not now, you dummies! Why not last year, so Mr. Wrigley could see it?!"
